Weather
Cloudy, improving. The maximum temperature yesterday was 81 and the minimum 54.3, the figures for the corresponding day last year being 77.9 and 59.9.

CHITA HOLDING KRONSTADT MEN TO BREAK REVOLT

Detachment Of 900 Sailors From Petrograd Always Ready

PROTECT COMMUNISTS

Likely To Be Sent To Vladivostok Later, Says 'Observer'

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 30.—Writing at Chita on May 18, the Chinese Official Obeserver says: Leaving Manchuli at 5 p.m. on the 14th instant, we did not reach Chita until the 17th at 5 p.m., just twenty-four hours behind time. By our train travelled in a special coach the newly appointed Chinese High Commissioner, Mr. Shen Kung-yuen, accompanied by three Attaches. Mr. Shen will look after the interests of Chinese residents in the Far Eastern Republic. Quarantine not having been withdrawn at Matzievsky station, all those not in possession of special permits were forced to leave the train and undergo a five-days quarantine. Documents were demanded here as well as at other stations en route, by the agents of State Safety who are on the lookout for Semianoff agents trying to get into the territory of the Far Eastern Republic. Between Matzievsky and Borzia there are a goodly amount of Red troops in evidence, while the railway along this section is mined, for this would be the most exposed part of the railway if Ungern were to attempt an advance in the Far Eastern Republic. A number of troops are also stationed South-west of the railway line in the Aksha district, and the total force is said to be strong enough to repel any attack undertaken by Ungern.

COAL LACKING

Owing to lack of coal we were forced to remain at Oloviannaya for fifteen hours. Here there is a strong force of soldiers in garrison, part of which is employed in rebuilding the permanent bridge across the Onon River.

From Oloviannaya the train traveled much faster and there were no long stops, as it was no longer necessary for the agents of Public Safety to examine passports minutely. Soldiers were far less in evidence at the stations, where arriving trains no longer cause undue interest except to peasant women bringing milk, sour cream, eggs, etc. to the station for sale to passengers.

The situation at Chita is perfectly quiet (May 18). The troops that are in garrison here came from the Amur district and had been here a little over a month when the 2nd and 3rd Divisions were sent to points west of Chita to protect the Mongolian-Siberian frontier against a possible raid by Ungern's forces. Seeing the importance of knowing exactly what is happening in these parts, it is in the mind of the writer that the military authorities of Manchuria continually keep a competent military attache with the staff at Chita in order that the higher military authorities may be regularly informed of any changes that take place and which may indirectly be of importance to China.

FIGHTING DENIED

The reports that have appeared in the papers to the effect that there has been an engagement between Ungern's troops and the Reds in the neighborhood of Kiakta are without foundation. There is a Red garrison at Kiakta, whilst the Mongol troops stationed at Mimacheng are quite friendly inclined towards the Russians and have nothing in common with Ungern.

Months ago there arrived at Chita from Petrograd (Kronstadt) a detachment of sailors, about 900 in all, and a naval staff which is now established at Chita. These sailors live on railway cars and, notwithstanding statements to the contrary, are held in readiness in case there should be any rising against the present authorities on the part of workmen or partisan troops. This naval detachment consists of pure Communists who took part in the first rising of the Bolsheviks in Russia Proper. In the event of no trouble taking place the sailors are likely to be sent to Vladivostok. Here they are doing nothing but enjoy themselves, the Government seeing that they are well fed and get free access to places of amusement.

I am given to understand that the Commandant of the 3rd Division of F. E. R. troops was shot some little time ago at Chita for having been found in possession of a letter sent to him by a member of Ungern's staff, the division this man commanded being stationed along the Mongolian frontier. The letter incri-

Noted Inventor Discovers Fluid That Goes Up Hill

FRED A. HOWARD, the noted chemist and scientist of Boston, has discovered a fluid, which he claims will run up hill. Korite, the name he has given the fluid, is of so fine a consistency that it acts physically upon particles invisible to the naked eye. Thorough tests with leather have proven that Korite by lubricating and preserving the fibres in leather, doubles the wearing power of ordinary shoe leather and makes it pliable and waterproof. Korite is the third important discovery Mr. Howard has made, and the textile and leather trades claim that his trio of finds means billions of dollars saved to the consumer. In the upper photo he is shown demonstrating his fire-proofing solution. The lower photo shows the inventor of Korite, the leather life-saver, in his laboratory.

NEW GOVERNMENT TELLS SEMENOFF TO STAY AWAY

Vladivostok Administration Cables That His Presence Is Undesirable

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, June 1.—The Communist members of the late administration have left for Harbin under Japanese protection.

The new government has cabled to Semenoff at Port Arthur advising him to keep away as the situation renders his presence here undesirable.

Advices from Chita state that Doctor Abbott and Colonel Davis, of the American commercial mission, visited Krasnostchekoff on May 22 and had a long conference with him.

Anti-Communist detachments, armed with machine-guns, have appeared between Habarovsk and Blagoveschtchensk.

The elections to the Popular Assembly will be carried out in accordance with the procedure drawn up by the temporary Zemstvo Government in 1920 without alteration.

Wenatchee Sails; Monteagle Is Due

The Steamer Wenatchee of the Admiral Line was scheduled to sail at 9 o'clock this morning for Seattle by way of Japanese ports. The vessel was held in port through yesterday due to the need of making certain minor repairs. The Wenatchee has a full passenger list and is expected to make the voyage across the Pacific in 17 days.

The liner Monteagle of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services is due to arrive here from Vancouver, B. C. by way of Japanese ports on Saturday and will be despatched from the Shanghai and Hongkew wharf Sunday morning at 6 o'clock.

PROPOSE NEW ROAD

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 31.—Japanese interests have approached the Government with regard to the construction of a railway line from Tienpaoshan to the Tumen River. The matter is now under the consideration of the Ministry of Communications.

KILL SIX SOLDIERS BY MINING ROAD IN COUNTY CORK

Twenty-One Others Injured In Explosion; Death Sentence For Constable

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 1.—While a detachment of the Hampshire Regiment was marching with the regimental band near Youchal, in County Cork, some rebels, by an electric device, exploded a mine in the roadway, with the result that six men were killed and 21 wounded. The survivors, aided by reinforcements, fired on and pursued the attackers, and several arrests were effected, among those taken into custody being the sons of neighboring farmers.

Vancouver, B. C., May 31.—Mr. Osmond Esmonde, who was arrested here on April 5, and charged with addressing an Irish meeting after he had promised to proceed direct to England (the condition on which he was allowed to land on arrival from Australia) and was convicted of seditious utterances, and recommended for deportation, has been released on promising to leave the country.

London, May 31—Three death-sentences promulgated in Dublin today include that on a Royal Irish constable for the murder of a justice of the peace at Milltown in February.

Randall Trying To Make Manila Dry

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Washington, May 27.—Former Congressman Randall of California urged the House Judiciary Committee to vote the Volstead Act to apply to Hawaii, the Philippines and the Virgin Islands, calling attention to the ruling of the Department of Justice that the Volstead Law does not apply to the Philippines. He said that Manila was the most wide open and most notorious city in the world because of liquor. Mr. Dyer opposed action pending settlement of the appeal for the independence of the Philippines. He said that prohibition ought not to be imposed on a people who did not want it.

MEETING VOICES PROTEST AGAINST URGA MASSACRE

Hebrews And Christians Here Unite In Expressing Their Indignation

RESOLUTION IS ADOPTED

Dr. F. L. Hawks Pott Presides —Eloquent Addresses Made By Speakers

Vigorous and eloquent protest following upon the recent massacre of Jews by Baron Ungern and his followers at Urga was voiced by speakers yesterday before a gathering of Hebrews and many of other faiths that filled every seat of the lecture hall of the Royal Asiatic Society. At the conclusion of the speaking the sentiment of the assemblage toward the outrage in Mongolia was expressed in a resolution that was proposed by the Rev. A. N. Rowland and seconded by Dr. Frank Rawlinson. It is as follows:

"Resolved that this public meeting held under the auspices of the Shanghai Jewish Communal Association deplores the massacre of Jews at Urga perpetrated by Baron Ungern and his soldiers and calls upon the Chinese Government to do its utmost to protect the lives and property of Jewish residents in China.

"That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Senior Consul for transmission to the Chinese Government."

Dr. F. L. Hawks Pott, President of St. John's University presided at the meeting and was supported on the platform by the Rev A. N. Rowland, Dr. Frank Rawlinson, Judge C. S. Lobingier of the United States Court for China, Rabbi W. Hirsch, Mr. Edward I. Ezra, Mr. D. M. David, Mr. N. E. B. Ezra, Secretary of the Shanghai Zionist Association and Mr. Arthur Sopher, Honorary Secretary of the Jewish Communal Association of Shanghai.

DR. HAWKS POTT SPEAKS

In opening the meeting Doctor Hawks Pott said that he was sensible of the honor done him when he was asked to preside at the meeting and continuing he stated the purpose for which the gathering had been called.

He expressed the view that an inevitable effect of long continued warfare had been to render people callous in the face of human suffering so that their sympathies grew jaded and the inclination developed to pass over such an event as occurred at Urga. Had this massacre taken place in normal times, he said, the popular feeling of indignation would have made itself felt far more emphatically.

The speaker said that the massacre was a thing to be regarded from three aspects: first political, second religious and third humanitarian. He said he would not undertake to speak upon the first, the political aspect, adding that it had commonly been suggested that Jews were directing the general Bolshevist movement. However true or false this may be, he said, and granting that a proportion of Jews in Russia were identified with the Bolshevists, still it was manifestly unjust to condemn the whole race for the views or acts of some portion of it.

On the second aspect, that of religion, the speaker said that the spirit of true religion should not be mistaken, for this, he said, led to human brotherhood. It was narrow bigotry that led to intolerance and religious persecution, he said.

On the humanitarian aspect of the incident he said there could be no two opinions. No good, true man, he asserted could remain silent in the face of such inhumanity as that perpetrated at Urga. One must cry out against an outrage such as that, for one could not remain true to the best ideals of present-day civilisation if one remained mute and passive. It was needful to protest, he said, for silence might mean the repetition of crimes like the Urga massacre.

REV. ROWLAND SPEAKS

The Rev. A. N. Rowland, who was the next speaker, asserted that the conscience of the Chinese Government should be awakened. He said that the Urga massacre was a thing that might properly call for action by the American and British Governments in impressing upon China its responsibility for the maintenance of peace and order.

The speaker added that no question of reprisals entered into consideration of the massacre today. Such was not the Jewish way, he said. If vengeance were

SILESIAN ISSUE CAUSING WORRY TO ALLIED CHIEFS

Germans Likely To Use Force In Resisting Polish Rebels

FRENCH CONNIVANCE

Supreme Council Meeting Has Been Indefinitely Postponed

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—Some anxiety is expressed in regard to the position of the British troops now arriving in Upper Silesia, as the Polish insurgents have apparently established occupation with much connivance, and though the Germans are exhorted to hold their hand, there is considered to be a danger of incidents taking place between the Germans and Poles which might lead to the British being forced to abandon a passive attitude.

The openly expressed anxiety of the Germans to help the British if the latter fail to restore order in the disputed area would cause a dangerous situation, affecting the relations among the members of the Entente.

Meanwhile the proposed meeting of the Supreme Council has been indefinitely postponed, and the French press is urging M. Briand not to yield to the Allies. The exchange of Notes between London and Paris still continues. A further French Note yesterday expresses the opinion that an immediate meeting of the Supreme Council is undesirable, and would also be difficult, with both the French and British Premiers absorbed in domestic politics.

The Note recommends that a committee of experts should go to Upper Silesia immediately, and prepare a report on the partition of that area, and that Berlin and Warsaw should meanwhile be vigorously enjoined to restore order.

London, May 31.—Sir Harold Stafford Kentish Commissioner on the Inter-Allied Rhineland High Commission, and formerly for some years Home Secretary to the Indian Government, has been appointed British Commissioner in the Allied Administration for the plebiscite of Upper Silesia, in succesion to Lt.-Col. Harold Percival, who has resigned for reasons of health.

London, May 31.—The situation in Berlin is reported to be extremely grave, owing to the Premier of Bavaria intimating to Berlin that, in view of strong opposition, he was unable to carry out the disarmament, in accordance with the Entente ultimatum, by June 30, of the Einwohnerwehr comprising 300,000 irregulars. The British are pressing strongly in this matter.

The Reichstag has been hurriedly called together, and the Berlin Government threatens to enforce obedience with Reichswehr troops.

U.S. Sends Note In Oil Controversy

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, May 31.—An American Note, responding to the Dutch reply to the American protest against the awarding of the Djambi oilfield monopoly to the Batavia Oil Company, takes exception to the Netherlands' assertion that the American protest was too late to affect the operation of that policy.

Sir John Jordan Speaks In London

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—At the annual breakfast of the Religious Tract Society at the Cannon Street Hotel today, Sir John Jordan, who presided, declared there was no doubt that moral and educational changes had been remarkable. The Society, he said, had a great scope in China in the future, but the great problem was how to reach the mass of unenlightened people, as the mastering of the language took a life-time.

U.S. To Recognise Mexico Shortly

(Reuter's Service)

Mexico City, May 31.—The negotiations between General Obregon and the American Charge d'Affaires, Mr. G. T. Summerlin, have made such satisfactory progress that it is predicted that American recognition of the Mexican government will shortly be possible.

More Speed For The Fire Department

MILWAUKEE is the first city in America to adopt a motorcycle "fire engine." At a recent fire the cycle "engine" was given a test. The speedy "engine," equipped with eight extinguishers and with its crew of two, reached the scene of the blaze long before the slow moving apparatus. With the extinguishers the two firemen put out the fire, which, had it been permitted to burn the few minutes before the apparatus arrived, might have caused considerable damage. Another feature of the new "engine" is its ability to dash around corners and through narrow alleyways. It is always ready for use at a moment's notice.

Japanese And Filipino Baseball Teams Locked In Tough, Twisted, Hard Knot

By ARTHUR WEST

Two gangs of Greek feudists wandered into this peaceful and law-abiding community some days ago. With the gentle intention of cutting each others' throats. On Monday and Tuesday, by way of keeping their hand in at their favorite game of mayhem, they set upon a number of unoffending Chinese citizens and beat them up unmercifully, which acts of outlawry inspired numerous requests to the police to call out the reserves for the protection of the natives against further assaults.

Yesterday, however, before the police could act, the rival outfits ran afoul of each other out in the north east section of the city, whereupon there ensued a battle of such terrific proportions that the look of sadness and compassion on the face of last evening's low descending sun, which you undoubtedly noticed, came from gazing upon it.

But it was a battle without victory, to paraphrase one of the war president's immortal foul tips. It had to be a battle without victory, since both parties, as previously mentioned, were full fledged Greeks, and when Greek meets Greek the only guy with any enthusiasm left after the argument is over is the undertaker. Sic two gangs of Greeks on each other and the result is identical with the result you get when you send an irresistible force crashing into an immovable barrier. "When Greek joined Greek," as Nathaniel Lee remarked, "then was a tug of war."

I'll say it was a tug of war!

What, the Greeks?

Maskee the Greeks. Who said anything about Greeks? Where do you get that Greek stuff? The tug of war I am alluding at was staged yesterday afternoon out in Mrs. Hongkew's back yard, with the Japanese and Filipino baseball teams on opposite ends of the rope.

Baseball teams? Thought you said it was a tug of war.

Tug of war? Away with that parlor stuff! That's a game they play at fat men's picnics. Who said anything about tugs of war? This was a baseball game—two of them in fact, and with enough kick in every inning to pry a Tuchun loose from his squeeze.

SOME HARD KNOT

Get this thing straight: On Monday the Japanese team played China and won by a score of 15 to 1. On Tuesday China played the Filipino boys and lost by a score of 1 to 15. Yesterday, in the first game of a double header between the Japanese and the Filipinos the score was 1 to 0 in favor of Japan, and in the second game it was 0 to 1 in favor of the Filipinos.

What if the Iron Duke and the Little Corporal had been as evenly matched? Or Foch and Hindenburg?

Tie? If that isn't a tie neither is necktie. If that isn't a knot neither were the tough and twisted things that we used to put in the other fellows' shirt tails at the ol' swimmin' hole.

The two teams will attempt to untangle themselves Saturday afternoon, but you'd better take a lantern with you if you go to the game, because on form and general appearance they probably will battle until midnight.

As to the technical side of yesterday's struggles at Hongkew park, see the Inside Blush. As to the crowd and the general layout—if you didn't see it you missed more than the movie queen did when her pearls were burgled. Her pearls probably were paste, anyway, but there was nothing pasty about yesterday's party. It was a ball game (for details see the Blush) and a bawl game, with all the Japanese citizens of Shanghai doing the bawling from their points of vantage in the grandstand and around the field and on the neighboring roofs and in the tree tops and dangling from telephone wires.

CAUSE FOR ENTHUSIASM

And they had reason to bawl, and yelp and hoot and squeal, for the team that was out there fighting for them, and for Japan, was a team that would get by in any except the major leagues in the States. The Filipino partisans, while less in numbers, were no less noisy, as was fitting and proper, since the team that was out there fighting for them, and for the Philippines, would get by in the States in any league except the majors.

The Japanese rooting section was finely organised on American college lines, with a cheer leader who systematically coaxed a great volume of noise out of thousands of willing throats, not forgetting to interpolate a friendly yell for the opposing players whenever they pulled a brilliant bit of work.

To the Americans in the crowd the friendly spirit abounding on all sides, and particularly between the opposing players, was significant and pleasing. Americans hold that baseball is the most democratic game in the world, in that it creates and keeps alive a spirit of friendly rivalry not only between the players, but between the spectators as well, and also because the intensity of the interest and enthusiasm it arouses in the minds and hearts of the onlookers leaves little room for the sour and gloomy cogitations that might otherwise be fomented there. In the game yesterday, when the Japanese scored their first run—the first run of the game—a middle aged Japanese gentleman who from his appearance might have been president of a bank or a Mitsui director, threw his brand new straw hat over the grandstand and slapped the writer a whack on the back that brought back memories of

DRASTIC ACTION TO BE TAKEN IN COAL STRIKE

Proclamation Extends Powers Of Government For Emergency

ACT IS SWEEPING

Food, Public Utilities, Ships, Cargoes And Vehicles May Be Seized

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—The Nottinghamshire and Forest of Dean miners have rejected the Government's proposals for the settlement of the coal dispute, but it is worthy of note that the votes were taken on the assumption of the miners that the Prime Minister intended to enforce an arbitration. Mr. Lloyd George's denial of this intention yesterday has altered the situation.

Mr. Frank Hodges, Secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, in the course of an interview, declared that the wages question should be settled by the owners and workers mutually, without calling in an outsider.

The gap dividing the parties could, he said, be considerably narrowed if the owners were now prepared to submit proposals with a higher standard wage than that already proposed.

Mr. Hodge's statement is regarded as a small advance towards peace.

A proclamation issued tonight extends the powers already taken by the Government under the Emergency Powers Act. The Government is thus empowered, inter alia, to take possession of gas, electricity and other works; to requisition food, material, ships, cargo and passenger accommodation; to take possession of coal-mines, stocks of coal and vehicles used for the distribution of coal; to fix prices of coal, gas and electricity, and to requisition or control the sale of motor-spirit.

The Railwaymen's and Transport-workers' Unions have totally removed their embargo on coal, which will now be handled for all purposes.

London, June 1.—While the miners' district councils are still passing resolutions opposing the acceptance of the Government's latest offer, there are unmistakable signs that the end of the present struggle is approaching. The removal of the embargo on imported coal by the railwaymen's and transport-workers' unions is regarded as a surrender to the force of circumstances, seeing that no difficulty is experienced in obtaining the necessary labor in connection with the removal of coal.

But a more portentous sign, and one which the leaders are not slow to appreciate, has been the use of oil for power purposes by many industries. Two of the great railway companies have recently extended their services considerably by employing oil-driven locomotives, while the renewal of the full tramway service at the traditional coal center of Newcastle by means of an oil installation has rudely awakened the miners to the facts at their very doors.

The coal owners will make no reply to the peace overtures advanced by Mr. Hodges until after their forthcoming meeting in London, but there is a general feeling in non-partisan quarters that things are shaping towards a settlement, and that the men will resume work before the middle of the month.

Sub Commander Freed At Trial Of War Criminals

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, May 31.—It is announced that the prosecution at Leipzig of Karl Neumann, the submarine commander who was charged with sinking the hospital ship Dover Castle, has been abandoned, as the preliminary examination established his complete innocence.

The third trial of war criminals has begun, Robert Neumann, a sentry at the camp of the chemical factory at Pommernsdorf, near Stettin, is charged with ill-treatment of prisoners.

The real culprit is alleged to be Sergeant-Major Trinke, who has disappeared, but is believed to be in Poland. Trinke specially selected Neumann to execute his orders.

COUNCIL NAMES BENEFIT FOR CHINESE STAFF

A statement of benefits applying to Chinese employes of the Municipal Council is published in today's Municipal Gazette. They are ordered to take effect from the beginning of the current year and apply to all Chinese employes receiving monthly salaries whose names are borne on the departmental pay sheets.

The benefits are as follows:

New Year Bonus.—Half a month's pay, up to maximum sum of $50, to each such employe of not less than a year's service, to be issued at the Chinese New Year festival.

Funeral Expenses.—On the death of any such Chinese employe the sum of $60 will be issuable in defrayment of funeral expenses irrespective of rank. This sum will be paid to the person or persons considered fit and proper to receive it.

Death Gratuity.—On the death of any such Chinese employe a gratuity equal to 5 percent of the annual pay drawn by such employe at the time of his death will be issuable in respect of each year's service to the person or persons considered fit and proper to receive it.

Invaliding Gratuity.—On being invalided from the service under medical certificate any such Chinese employe will be entitled to receive a sum equal to 5 percent of the annual pay drawn by the employe at the time of such retirement in respect of each year's service, upon favorable recommendation in each case by the Head of the Department concerned.

Retirement Gratuity.—A gratuity equal to the sum stated under the heading "Invaliding Gratuity" will be issued to every such Chinese employe on resignation or on termination of service other than by dismissal at any time after completion of twenty years' service.

Special Gratuity.—In the case of Chinese employes killed in the execution of their duty, or whose death or invaliding is due to causes arising directly out of the performance of duty, the Death or Invaliding Gratuities shall be subject to special recommendation in each case by the Head of the Department concerned.

Harding's Speech Felicitates British

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—On the occasion of the unveiling of the bust of Washington—the gift of American citizens—in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral, a message from President Harding was read, in which he expressed the hope that this and similar gifts to Liverpool Town Hall and Sulgrave Manor would be regarded as testifying anew to America's long-established friendship with the British nation, and that it might inspire a reciprocation of that sentiment by the British people, recalling their common inheritance in language, institutions, customs and sympathies.

Washington, May 31.—There was a pretty and unrehearsed incident in the Memorial Day celebrations when at the conclusion of President Harding's address at the Arlington National Cemetery, Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, placed on the flag beside the President a wreath of roses presented by the people of Great Britain and the Dominions, in memory of America's sacrifices for liberty.

Military Activity In Kalgan District

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 31.—There has been great military activity in the Kalgan district for the past few days. The Commander-in-Chief, General Tso Fen, arrived at Pangkiang from Kalgan on May 23, and General Tien Hsian-chang, commanding the 32nd Brigade, and General Tien Yu-wang, commanding the 25th Brigade, yesterday received orders to proceed to Kalgan to organise a force to reinforce the troops at Pangkiang. General Tso Fen has instructed Major-General Chen Hsi-wu, commanding the 1st Brigade at Chahar, to proceed to Peking to consult the Government on the proposed appointment of Mr. Tylung Tulsh, a Mongolian, as Chief Guide for the Expeditionary Force. It is understood that a detachment of Fengtien troops from Taonanfu has been despatched to cut off the Russo-Mongolian forces from a possible retreat to the east. The General Staff has telegraphed to the military authorities at Manchuli, instructing them, if possible, to cut the lines of communication by which the Russo-Mongol forces are receiving supplies.

COOLIES STRIKE

(Reuter's Service)

Calcutta, May 31.—Five thousand coolies, dock laborers and workshop employees at Howrah have struck work for a 25 percent increase in wages.

Smiles from the Mixed Court

Taung Sz-wan had advanced ideas about the simplification of the judiciary until yesterday when he slumped back into the conservative class.

Night before last Detective Sergeant Kilkenny and Sub-Inspector Wilson were out on a tour of Chinese lodging houses in the Central District and dropped in at 71 Ningpo Road to see if everything was in order. There was a pungent order floating about the corridors which the police officers ran down to its source—a room on the second floor. Entering abruptly they found Taung and Lee Yoong-zung languidly dragging dream out of a brace of very elaborate opium pipes. The callers explained that this was distinctly against the Municipal regulation governing lodging houses.

Taung smiled in the approved style, as laid down by Mr. Bret Harte, detonated a few syllables of the Northern dialect at Lee—who fumbled in his breast pocket—and turned again to the officers. Bowing politely to D. S. Kilkenny he extended a hand from the fingers of which fluttered a crisp $5 bill. This was preliminary to a rapid trip to Central station.

"I'm sorry. It was a misunderstanding," Taung told the Court yesterday. "I gathered from the foreigners' remarks that to smoke opium was an offense punishable by a fine. I was quite willing to stand corrected and when I handed him the note I was under the impression that I was paying that fine."

The Court explained to Taung that while correct in his anticipation of a fine he was mistaken as to the time it fell due and also as regarded the amount, which would be $15. In Lee's case it would be $3. Which of the two stands the loss of the $5 note is a matter for debate, and probably is being debated.

WONG RECONSIDERS.

Wong Kwei-sung being well aware of the difficulties of suicide in the Whangpoo—the banks of which are patrolled by a lynx-eyed force of policemen who are always boat-hooking aspirants out on the third bounce—decided that he would spike all chances of rescue. So he went to a chemist's shop on Foochow Road and bought a bottle of nitric acid. Then he went down to the Canton Road jetty balanced himself on the edge and with a sardonic leer at the constable on the roadway, tilted the bottle to his lips. As the acid bit into his mouth he let out one wild whoop and dove into the drink. The C.P.C., who had been eyeing him suspiciously, was on the brink in about four jumps and grabbing a boathook from one of the launches lying at the jetty he got it enmeshed in Wong's jacket and hauled him ashore.

When they got to the station it was found that Wong hadn't swallowed any of the acid—he admitted that suicide faded out of his mind when he got the first taste of it—but he was so badly burned that he had to be sent to hospital for treatment.

Wong, as he told the Court when he was able to appear, is a Chinese writer. His business consists of the drawing of elaborate characters signifying and inductive to marital felicity, easy money, fair winds, etcetera, but of late his products either have been failing to produce the guaranteed result or there is such an oversupply of good luck that the character market is dead. In any case he couldn't sell a gilded syllable and he couldn't see any reason for living. But, he told the Magistrate, he had come to look at things differently since trying the acid and was ready to promise not to do it again; so the Court sent him home.

TSONG ALSO

Tsong King-fah was another who tired of the slings and arrows and tried to ebb out of this mortal coil by stepping off the Keechong Road wharf, contrary to the police regulations. The ever-present C.P.C. was on hand with the ever ready boat-hook and yesterday Tsong also told the Court that he was repentant and reformed. He had previously been employed by a shopkeeper in Nanking, he said and his master had set fire to the shop. Tsong had no insurance on his other shirt and when he asked compensation from his employer the latter refused. The shopkeeper having retired from business he had no job and he had come to Shanghai to find a friend. He was unable to find the friend and had no money to return home. The Court arranged to send him [illegible].

CHITA COUNCIL DEFENDS POLICY IN DECLARATION

Invites All Parties And Groups To Share In Government

(Dalta News Agency)

Chita, May 26.—The Council of Ministers of the Far Eastern Republic has published the following declaration: Under the conditions of extreme economic destruction when civil strife has terminated and foreign intervention continues, which lately has openly adopted a policy of seizure of very valuable portions of the Republic, the Far Eastern Government, elected by the Constituent Assembly, formed the Council of Ministers, entrusting it with the responsible task of managing and directing the affairs of the Republic.

We are now entering into an era of independent statesmanship. The Russian masses of the working masses of the Russian Far East, in their long, stubborn and hard resistance against reaction and intervention and in the fire of civil war, forged a strong determination for unity and defense of their rights and their country. The unification of the Far East ended with the election of the Constituent Assembly which has worked out the fundamental laws and the Constitution of the Republic.

Now the Council of Ministers is face to face with the tasks of putting these laws into practice of reorganising state economy, of realising the principles of civil and political freedom and democracy and, last but not least, of bringing about the final and real union of the provinces of the Far East into a compact state organization, thereby doing away with the remains of civil war, intervention and economic disorganisation of different parts of the Republic. The tasks enumerated above are the tasks of the majority of the population and of all classes of the toiling people which can be realised only through co-operation and exertion of all groups and political parties of the workers.

This is the reason that the Government invites to participate in the responsible work of the Council of Ministers all political parties and groups which are willing to dedicate their ability and knowledge to the cause of re-establishing the state and economic life of the Republic.

Entrusted with the task of expressing the will of the majority of the people, the Council of Ministers, bearing in mind the common interests of the working people of the Republic, will at the same time realise the aspirations of the Nation as a whole. Therefore, the Council of Ministers has the right, not only of demanding subordination in accordance with fundamental laws, but also of expecting friendly support of all classes without distinction, party or otherwise. The Council of Ministers is entirely responsible before the people whose representative body is the National Assembly. The Council of Ministers will pursue a course of independent statesmanship, regardless of any obstacle and opposition on the part of hostile nationalities. Granting an unlimited field of initiative and independent activities in the local self-governments the Council of Ministers makes it its primary duty to eliminate any tendency toward separation. It will see that uniform systems of self-government are established throughout the territory of the Republic according to the Constitution. This, as well as the establishment of local democratic organs will be greatly facilitated by the introduction of the institution of Provincial Commissars.

G. W. W. SETTLES WITH BOULON; SUIT QUASHED

W. S. Fleming, Counsel For Company, Scored By Rodger

A further, and probably the final, development in the F. G. Boulon-Gaston, Williams and Wigmore controversies came in somewhat startling fashion yesterday in the United States Court for China when it was announced that the company had settled with Mr. Boulon and the latter's suit for damages was withdrawn.

In announcing the withdrawal of the action Mr. H. D. Rodger, counsel for Mr. Boulon, bitterly denounced Mr. W. S. Fleming, formerly attorney for the company, Mr. Sterling Fessenden, present counsel for G.W.W., concurring in the arraignment.

The settlement with the complainant was for Tls. 20,000, to which is added Tls. 15,000 involved in the counter-claim brought by the company.

"The plaintiff and defendant in this case and in the damage suit have arrived at an amicable settlement," Mr. Rodger stated, "by which all claims of Boulon against Gaston, Williams and Wigmore, F. E. Div. Inc.; Gaston, Williams and Wigmore (New York), and W. H. Swift are settled upon the payment of Tls 20,000 which Gaston, Williams and Wigmore paid Mr. Boulon yesterday, and Tls. 15,000 which Mr. Boulon has heretofore received—set out in the counterclaim—a total of Tls. 35,000.

"In withdrawing the damage suit my client wishes me to state that we do so with the firm belief that the action taken against Mr. Boulon was instituted on the undoubtedly malicious and reckless legal advice of W. S. Fleming, whose attitude in this case is not difficult to understand. The charge against Mr. Boulon was fostered in Fleming's soured and vindictive mind and he never took the trouble to ascertain, as it was his duty to do, the facts in this matter.

"In conducting the criminal prosecution Mr. Fleming employed means that no other American lawyer has heretofore used and which merited a rebuke from this Court. Had this case been in the hands of the present counsel for Gaston, Williams and Wigmore, Mr. Fessenden, no criminal proceedings would have been instituted. Fleming's course throughout the proceedings and the statements he made before this honorable Court and in his pleadings were not only uncalled for but if used by any person other than a lawyer or at any other time would have resulted in a prosecution for criminal libel.

"The criminal action should never have been taken, and Mr. Boulon's good name and standing should never have been discredited."

"I concur in what Mr. Rodger has said," said Mr. Fessenden. "I feel that what he has said is true, and that the criminal case should not have been brought. It appears to me that the criminal charge was prompted by personal animus of counsel. I am glad to state that a solution of the matter has been arrived at, an amicable setlement reached, and friendly relations re-established between the parties."

Baseball Teams In Twisted Knot

the old Cub-Sox battles in Chicago years ago.

That is the spirit of baseball. Who knows but what, if the Yap issue and the Philippine Independence issue drag along until Japan and the Philippines can develop their baseball teams to a parity with those of America, the politicians and militarists may be pushed aside, and decisions left to the ball tossers and the umps?

In the meantime, however, many a Hongkew coolie will blossom out today in a perfectly good straw hat that a foreign idiot took off of his head and threw away—just like that, unbelievable as it may seem to you, Amah.

And on Saturday, when those two teams clash again for a final test, will we be there, with our tongue hanging out and our eyes popping?

Will we?

Mixed Court Jottings

The Chinese merchant charged with misappropriation of Tls. 70,000 by Fukusho and Co. through the mortgaging of coal delivery orders was again before the Mixed Court yesterday, the hearing being in chambers. The accused was allowed bail in the amount of Tls. 70,000.

A bookbinder living at 1013 Markham Road was ordered to pay a fine of $25 or go to jail for three months for running an opium den. A patron arrested in the place was fined $3.

The attempted robbery of a coolie who was in possession of four balls of opium at the Yuenfong Road jetty Tuesday night brought the possessor of the drug and four of the would-be thieves into Court yesterday, when the coolie was sentenced to a month's imprisonment for being in possession, one of his assailants got four years, two others six months each and the fourth three months. The first accused said that he had been given the opium to take ashore by a man on board a ship.

Two lodging house keepers drew fines of $200 each yesterday for failure to conduct their places in accordance with the regulations and for allowing thieves to resort therein.

Seven men appeared yesterday charged with being members of a band of armed robbers. Four who were arrested in Frenchtown and found to be in possession of a revolver and ammunition and a knief were remanded in custody, the other three being dismissed for lack of evidence.

PROHIBIT BOOK ABOUT MRS. EDDY AS TOO FLIPPANT

She Is Called 'Thrice Married Female Trismegistus' In History Of Literature

PUTNAMS RECALL VOLUME

Christian Science Official Protests Against Article Written By Vassar Professor

New York, April 19.—Because Albert F. Gilmore, in charge of the Christian Science Committee on Publication for the State of New York, objected to an article, "Science and Health," in the fourth and last volume of "The Cambridge History of American Literature," G. P. Putnam's Sons have stopped the sale of the volume, discontinued the publication of any more copies, and will recall all the volumes so far on the market. The volume was issued just a month ago.

The offending article was written by Dr. Woodbridge Riley, professor of philosophy in Vassar College, Poukhkeepsie, N. Y., and he is exceedingly angry at the treatment he has received. The most offending part was where Mrs. Eddy is called "the thrice-married female Trismegistus."

Major George Haven Putnam and Irving Putnam, who are brothers, have arranged to have Dr. Riley's article eliminated at once and to have the Rev. Dr. Lyman P. Powell, President of Hobert College, N. Y., write a substitute article.

Irving Putnam said last evening that it would cost his firm "a great deal" to suppress the volume and issue another, and that between 1,500 and 2,000 books had already gone out. He said it was the first time that any book issued by Putnam's Sons had ever been recalled or suppressed. He characterised Dr. Riley's article as "outrageous." He had not read it until his attention was called to it by Mr. Gilmore, as that, he said, was the task of his editors.

"We, as publishers," Mr. Putnam continued, "have always taken the ground that we do not in any way hold ourselves responsible for the views or the statements expressed by writers whose books we publish. The only thing we look to when material comes from a reputable source is that it is said in decent parliamentary language and with due respect to the subject which it treats.

NOT READ BY PUBLISHING Co.

"This important work on American Literature, which has been in course of publication for some years, has been handled entirely, as far as editorial responsibility is concerned, by Professor W. P. Trent of Columbia and his colleagues. While some of the material had, perhaps, been read in our office, it happened that Professor Riley's articles had not been read by any one of our publishing board.

"Within the last few days, our attention was called to Professor Riley's article on Christian Science, and for the first time it was read by me. It is no exaggeration to say that I was absolutely shocked at this article, not merely at the expressions used by at the various characterisations of the founder of Christian Science and of the various people connected with it, and by the tone of contempt and ridicule. The conclusion at once in my own mind was that it was something that we, as a publishing house, could not stand for in any way.

"I brought it to the attention of the rest of our board and were in substantial accord. We wrote at once to Professor Trent telling him that it must be expurged and that he must secure an article by another writer who, whatever his views on Christian Science, could treat with decent respect the religious opinions of a substantial part of the community. That is the entire story. We have stopped the sale of the volume.

"As soon as the new article is ready, we shall request the return of all the copies that are available and shall replace the Riley article with one covering the ground, but covering it in a way which will not be offensive and which will be in language that we are willing to stand for as reputable publishers.

"It was Albert F. Gilmore who called my attention to the book. I asked Mr. Gilmore to put in writing the specific objections to which he referred. After Mr. Gilmore left, I for the first time read the article, and I was so shocked that I at once called up Mr. Gilmore on the phone and said, 'Do not trouble yourself to write that letter to us. Your protest, however strong it may be, cannot be as strong as my own protest and that of the rest of our publishing board.'"

The offending chapter is no. XXVIII., entitled "Popular Bibles." These are "The Book of Mormon" and "Science and Health."

Mr. Putnam said that the article on "The Book of Mormon" would remain in the book as there had been no complaint. He said also that the case was different, "because Mormonism was dead," whereas Christian Science was very much alive.

Professor Riley said yesterday that he felt that his treatment by Putnam's Sons was a reflection on his reputation as an author. In answer to this Mr. Putnam said he was willing to submit the "Science and Health" article to anybody and let him "form his own judgment."

The paragraph to which Mr. Gilmore and the Putnams objected the most reads:

"According to her own account, issued for the benefit of the faithful, Mary Morse Glover Patterson Eddy, the thrice-married female Trismegistus, was born about 1820 at Bow, N. H., and counted among her ancestors the hero Wallace and the poetess Hannah Moore. At the age of 8 she experienced a kind of juvenile annunciation, hearing heavenly voices calling her; nevertheless she soon absorbed much earthly lore in natural philosophy, logic, moral science, Hebrew, Greek and Latin. However, after her discovery of Christian Science, most of her knowledge 'vanished like a dream.'"

INTIMATION OF DISPLEASURE

"Volume 4 of The Cambridge History of American Literature was received at Vassar Library on March 26 last," said Professor Riley. "The first intimation I had of the displeasure of the publishers was when on Sunday afternoon last I received a special delivery letter from one of the editors. I came to New York this morning and had an interview with Mr. Irving Putnam.

"The one phrase objected to, according to the publishers, was that in which I called Mrs. Eddy 'the thrice-married female Trismegistus.' This is a reference to the so-called 'Hermes,' an imaginary character by whom a great deal in the Third Century Christian Science was fathered. Christian Science is a partial revival of the Neoplatonism of Alexandria.

"Mr. Putnam claims that he was astonished at the tone of the article, that it was written in a light and flippant vein without due reverence for the subject of a religion believed in by several millions of persons. Major Putnam subsequently confirmed the opinion of his brother and said that they could hardly afford to offend two million readers.

"I don't think an important publishing house has ever before suppressed a volume of such importance. I know of course that the publishers are within their rights in doing what they want with an article after it has been bought and paid for. But the tone of the article was never objected to until the book was on the market.

"'The Cambridge History of American Literature' is considered the most important publication on American literature that has been brought out. And I don't propose to have my reputation impugned at the eleventh hour.

"My essay on 'Science and Health' is based on first-hand information. I spent more money traveling around to get this data than I received for the article. Much of this material has been suppressed by the Christian Scientists. The bibliography suggests how this was done. For instance, Chapter II., third edition of Mrs. Eddy's book, entitled, 'Demonology,' was omitted in later editions upon the advice of Mrs. Eddy's literary adviser, the Rev. James H. Wiggin."

Feelers Sent Out On Disarmament

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, May 31.—It is stated in high official quarters that the Government has already put out feelers for the purpose of sounding foreign governments as regards the conclusion of an international agreement for the reduction of armaments. It is believed that the Government hopes to induce one of the powers to bring the matter before the Supreme Council, on which the United States is not represented.

to be exacted it would be wreaked by God in His own time and in His own way, he said. He added that the record of history proved that those nations quickest to seek revenge were the quickest to pass away.

The speaker then alluded to a communication he said he had received from a Russian publication in which it was urged that the Jews themselves by identifying themselves with Bolshevism had invited what had happened at Urga. He said this argument conveyed the suggestion that unless Jews throughout the world repudiated Bolshevism a general massacre might follow in Russia as soon as Bolshevism is overthrown there.

Doctor Rawlinson who then spoke expressed regret that it had been upon the initiative of Jewish residents that the meeting had been called. He was sorry, he said, that the movement to cry out against the Urga massacre had not originated here with the Christian elements of the community.

Doctor Rawlinson said that Baron Ungern did not represent the real Russia and he added that the thing to be done is to appeal to the soul of Russia. No nation, he said, could hope to rise to greatness over the dead bodies of any of its own people

RABBI HIRSCH SPEAKS

In the brief and eloquent address that he gave Rabbi Hirsch said that he grieves not only for the defenseless victims of his own race who had been murdered at Urga, but for humanity in general, for he held that the Urga massacre was a challenge to our civilisation. When one hears of men, women and little children done to death as they were by Ungern and his men, he declared, one does not stop to inquire of what race or creed were the victims.

The charge that Jews have directed and financed the general Bolshevist movement he characterised as a malicious lie, for, he added, Bolshevism was contrary to the ideals of Judaeism and contrary to right and justice.

"Why should we repudiate Bolshevism?" he asked. "What have we to do with Bolshevism?" He went on to point out that it would be folly for the Jews to permit themselves to fall into the trap of being made to repudiate a thing that they have not had anything to do with.

The speaker then told something of the horrors of pogroms in Russia, saying the world could scarcely realise the extent of the suffering that Jews have undergone.

MR. E. I. EZRA SPEAKS

Mr. Edward I. Ezra who was the last speaker expressed thanks particularly to the Christian representation present who came to the meeting to add their protest to that of the Jewish community against the Ungern massacre. He said that the meeting had not been called to seek revenge or to call for the punishment of the perpetrators of the outrage but to express sorrow and to voice a protest.

Telling of the actual happenings at Urga he said it had been the women and children who were first murdered, as the more able-bodied were left to the last by the murderers. Continuing, this speaker also referred to the charge that the Jews sympathised with the Bolshevists and saying that this had been denied in many ways, he pointed out that the Jews in Russia themselves had been the greatest sufferers from Bolshevism. It was the common occurence, he said that the Bolshevists on capturing a town would turn their wrath against the Jews found there and then later when the place would be taken by anti-Bolshevists these forces too would wreak vengeance on the defenseless Jews, each charging that the Jew's sympathies were with the opposing side.

He explained that the Jews in Russia in general were engaged in trade and in commercial pursuits and added that it was unlikely that they would be in sympathy with a cause like Bolshevism which disrupted trade and destroyed homes and put an end to peace and order. It is unreasonable he pointed out to believe that the Jews would seek to foster a thing that disrupted their trading, stripped them of their possessions and destroyed their homes.

Mr. Ezra said the holding of the meeting had been deferred for a time in the belief that the earlier reports of the Urga massacre might have been exaggerated and the incident might not be of such magnitude as to call for general action. He went on to say that later and fuller details of the happening at Urga not only bore out all that had been contained in the first reports but he declared that these proved that the atrocity was even more horrible than described in published reports.

He said these later reports told that 1,800 Jews and Chinese had been slaughtered and a recent message indicated that the massacre was still being carried on.

He pointed out that the onslaught had been upon those who could not defend themselves, first upon the Jews, and as it was known that Peking would be slow to act, then upon the Chinese. The speaker remarked significantly that Ungern had been careful to refrain from killing Japanese.

At the conclusion of the speaking the resolution was adopted by unanimous vote.

Fighting In South Unavoidable, Belief

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, May 31.—According to the Hongkong Telegraph, Mr. Tang Shao-yi is proceeding to Canton, and Mr. Tong Ting-kwong, the Naval Minister, has tendered his resignation.

President Sun Yat-sen is raising a second division of the National Defense Force.

Owing to the failure of the negotiations between Kwangsi and Canton it is thought that serious fighting is unavoidable. General Chen Chiung-ming is proceeding to the West River for the purpose of inspecting the defensive positions.

'Pacification' Body Named By Peking

Peking, June 1.—The Government has appointed as "pacification commissioners" to Mongolia Mr. Ta Shou, the Vice-President of the Bureau for Tibetan and Mongolian Affairs, and Lieutenant-General Hsi Yen. The former is proceeding to Eastern Mongolia and the latter to Western Mongolia with the object of explaining the purpose of the Mongolian expedition and of arousing sympathy with China's forthcoming attempt to establish friendly relations with the Mongols on a durable basis.

American Attorney Admitted To Bar

Mr. Max Shoop, who recently came to Shanghai from the Philippines, was admitted to practice in the United States Court for China by Judge C. S. Lobingier yesterday. Mr. Shoop, who was formerly a resident of New York, was admitted to the bar in New York in 1913. He is a graduate of Amherst College and the Harvard Law School. Motion for the admittance of Mr. Shoop was made by Mr. S. Fessenden.

Quelch-Crawley Case Date Of Trial Set

On motion of the plaintiff hearing of the case of Harry Quelch against Paul S. Crawley was set by Judge C. S. Lobingier of the United States Court for China for June 10. The plaintiff alleges that Mr. Crawley, who is now in the United States, obtained goods for which he has given no accounting and he therefore asks for judgment in the sum of $12,000.

Armed Robbers Get Slim Haul In Raid

Armed robbers made what must have been a sadly disappointing haul in a pawnshop at 298 Tsepoo Road last night shortly after 9 o'clock. Five men participated in the raid and the entire loot amounted to $4, comprising a silver watch and a silver dollar. Probably to express their disgust the robbers fired one shot, which harmed no one. Two of the men carried revolvers.

Inducement Offered For Wide-Tired Carts As Road Saving Plan

With a view to reducing the damage done to the Settlement highways by heavily laden handcarts the Municipal Council announces a decreased license fee for all vehicles of this type which shall be fitted with 3-inch tires. Old pattern tires, of less than 3-inches width will be assessed the Tls. 2 per month fee as heretofore, but handcarts having tires 3 inches wide made to be operated at a fee of Tls. 1.50 per month.

In announcing the reduction the Council advises handcart owners to take advantage of the scheme, intimating that if the new type of wheels are not adopted in sufficient numbers at an early date, further restrictions in the matter of licensing will be enforced.

Luxembourgers To Get Property

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 31.—Some time ago the Dutch Legation, on behalf of Luxembourg, drew the attention of the Government to the fact that Luxembourg was an independent State and not Allied to Germany, and therefore requested that the property of citizens of that State, confiscated by the Chinese Government, should be returned to them. It is understood that the Chinese Government considers the request to be just, and will reply in that sense to the Dutch Legation.

JAPAN'S PRINCE

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—Mr. Lloyd George has telegraphed to the Japanese Crown Prince, expressing the pleasure which the latter's visit has given to the British people. Lord Curzon has also telegraphed to the Crown Prince, remarking that he had "presented us with a happy image of the friendly people and august ruling House of Japan." Vice-Admiral Oguri has sent a message to the Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth, expressing appreciation of the generous hospitality extended to the officers and men during their visit to the naval port.

Paris, May 31.—Crown Prince Hirohito arrived here this afternoon, and was welcomed at the station by the Ministers of Marine and the Interior and representatives of President Millerand and M. Briand. He was warmly greeted by a large crowd outside the station as he drove to the Japanese Embassy. The newspapers extend a hearty welcome to the distinguished visitor.

London, June 1.—The Japanese Crown Prince has sent the Commissioner of Police a donation of £1,000 for the City Police Orphanage.

Sores from Wrist to Elbow
"Completely Healed"

Our portrait is of Mr. John Kidd, of 17, Mill Lane, Kilmarnock, Scotland, who writes:—"My right arm became covered with sores from wrist to elbow and was useless for over two years. I tried different ointments and so-called cures, but they never did me any good. Then I tried your 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and the sores soon began to heal up and power began to come back to my arm, so I persevered with the Mixture, and after having four bottles am glad to say my arm is completely healed up and I have now the full use of it." In a further letter over a twelvemonth later Mr. Kidd writes: "I have had no return of my complaint; my arm is still as sound as a bell and never troubles me in the least."

Picking Men By Psychology

Trade Tests. By J. Crosby Chapman. Henry Holt and Co.

"Trade Tests" is the first comprehensive treatise on what the American Government accomplished during the war in the field of vocational guidance. The author is J. Crosby Chapman, the psychologist and personnel expert, who during the war served in the tests and standards section of the War Department as consulting expert. Except for a special article or two and War Department pamphlets nothing has been written on this subject before.

The United States during the war was confronted by the problem of supplying the army with thousands of skilled workmen, expert in their different trades. How to select these from the vast number of recruits, select them quickly and in a manner that would assure the commander of their regiments of their fitness and reliability was the problem of the War Department.

The army problem differed from the problem of large manufacturers because in the army there could be no trial week to serve as a test, and furthermore, there could not be spared men trained in the different trades to do the examining. The examining had to be done by persons ignorant of the trades in which they were conducting examinations.

The objects of the committee on classification of personnel, which was set the task of evolving a system of examination, were the following: "(1) The methods must be applicable to all trades; (2) the methods must be such that they can be employed by an intelligent examiner who has no personal knowledge of the trade; (3) the methods must yield a rating of a man which is independent of the examiner's individual judgment; in other words, the test must be objective and not subjective; (4) the methods must be rapid and in most cases must not require the use of tools or apparatus.

All these objects were accomplished by a corps of experts, among whom the author selects for special mention such men as Dr. E. L. Thorndike, Col. Walter Dill Scott and Dr. W. V. Bingham, all of whom are eminent in the domain of psychology.

"Essentially, the trade test is a measuring rod which can be used without trade knowledge on the part of the examiner for rating in objective quantitative terms the degree of trade ability possessed by the person under examination," declares the author.

"The idea of measuring such a human trait as trade ability by an objective scale is of such recent date that it calls for some discussion. . . . The distinction between the subjective scale which expresses ability in terms of 'excellent, good, poor, bad,' and the objective scale which expresses ability in terms that are constant in value and universally understood cannot be too clearly made. In the case of a perfectly objective scale all competent persons agree, while in the case of a perfectly subjective scale, all competent persons disagree, save by chance."

In order to obtain such a test examiners in vocational schools and large employers of skilled labor were consulted, from both of which classes valuable ideas were taken. As a matter of fact, a considerable body of manufacturers co-operated with the War Department in the making of the tests.

Standards of perfection in the different trades were established. These standards or "measuring" corresponding to the degree of perfection necessary in the making of apprentice, journeyman, expert, etc. Questions were evolved, each of which had a definite numerical value. The examiners were provided with both questions and answers and were able in this way to rate the examinee and accurately pigeonhole according to his trade ability. The tests were oral and written. There were also picture tests and performance tests.

"The use of methods of job analysis and the application of trade tests," says the author, "are not theoretical ideas which will have to fight for a hearing. The situation in almost all large industries is crying out for some device which will meet the present difficulties of operation. Every large employment office either through its follow up work, when using methods of general interview, or else through its expensive office pay roll, when the examinations are conducted by experts, knows how necessary is some radical change in the mechanism of placement. Just as in the army the occupational specifications and trade tests came into existence to meet urgent demands of the personnel officers, who saw their own methods were completely breaking down, so also in industry job analysis and trade tests will enter to fill a want, the magnitude of which is best known to the employment office itself."

Dr. Chapman admits that the methods evolved by the army are not suited in their present form to civilian industry, but he believes with some modification the discoveries of the War Department are practical, and, with here and there a modification, can be applied to all modern industry.

Discussing job analysis the author believes that the further splitting up of trades is inevitable. He asserts that men ought not to be hired on the basis of general fitness but on the basis of their fitness for a particular job. Under this arrangement such a classification as machinists will disappear, and in its place will appear such as job 26, job 43, etc. These new classifications will be obtained by analysing every job on the basis of its physical, mental economic and human characteristics. Applicants will be tested, and if their ratings are those of the vacancies they will be hired.

"When the scale of production which the necessities of the world make imperative is begun," asserts Dr. Chapman, industry will be in desperate need of more and particularly skilled men. Without the strictest economy in the use of human resources the process of adjustment may be indefinitely prolonged. The decline in the quantity of labor available must eventually mean the introduction of a more effective method of using the knowledge and skill of each man employed.

"Increased personnel, however expensive the procedure, is the only possible solution unless industry is willing to make radical alterations in the methods of hiring, assigning, transferring and training men. To effect these alterations the most careful attention will have to be given to the related problem of training the employee and measuring objectively the degree of his proficiency. Maximum production goes hand in hand with correct placement."

Best Short Stories

The Best Short Stories of 1920. Edited by Edward J. O'Brien. Small, Maynard and Co.

Reviewed by ELEANOR HAYDEN

Again Mr. O'Brien offers to the public the twenty short stories published during the current year in American magazines that particularly please his taste and that most nearly come up to his tests of substance and form. In his introduction the editor deplores the commercialisation of the American magazines that tends to standardise the output of young authors by insisting that they repeat the note that first pleased the public taste until all the original meaning of the note has been lost. Mr. O'Brien suggests that from the modern American short stories is being built up the first national literature that is not founded on one racial feeling but many racial feelings; that impersonal creation is taking the place of hack work and that a sincere criticism of life is being offered in stories of inherent vitality artistically presented.

From this sympathetic introduction one turns to the contents of the book, and what does one find? The first story in the book, entitled "The Other Woman," is by Sherwood Anderson, to whom the volume is dedicated. This rather unpleasant tale concerns a man who seeks reality with the wife of a tobacconist the night before his marriage. Said one critic, "I think there are some people who should leave marriage alone, and that man is one of them." Said another, "Why should Mr. O'Brien consider that the best short story? It may be true to life, but it isn't even interesting."

What else does one find in the volume? A vivid tale by Konard Bercovici told of Ghitza, an ancient hero of a wandering gypsy tribe, who jumped into the chill waters of the Danube rather than betray his village; a story by Edna Clare Bryner called "The Life of Five Points," in which a sort of Spoon River realism is attempted; "The Signal Tower," by Wadsworth Camp, a sensational plot of a switchman in a lonely railroad tower with the problem before him of leaving his job to protect his wife from a drunken man or staying on his job, switching the "express" and the "special" to avoid a smash. One slides through the book. There is a story by Katherine Fullerton Gerould, entitled "Habakkuk," that seems like an oasis in a sandy place, a bit of real style and subtlety in a desert arid of such pleasant things. There is a pseudo-profound Rupert Hughes story of the Mississippi with the kind of philosophy in it that seems to insure Mr. Hughes's popularity.

Grace Sartwell Mason has written a really good response to the women who prate about men's jobs being so easy and so interesting—men's "having the best of it" and only doing what they like. Mrs. Mason scorns such twaddle in conversation, and shows how one man in "His Job" had to work for his success and was willing to sacrifice the pleasant immediate for the future that he wanted to build. In "The Rending" James Oppenheim repeats the strain that Anzia Yezierska utilised so adequately in "The Fat of the Land" (in the 1919 volume of short stories). Mr. Oppenheim gives another version of the breaking away from the old tradition by the oncoming generation, but a version in which the power of Miss Yezierska is strangely diluted. In "The Rotter" Fleta Campbell Springer writes of an Englishman returned from India to die and his pleasant revival of a friendship with the wife of an old comrade, a woman who is realising her loneliness for the first time as her daughter, for whom she has lived, is about to join the ranks of the successfully married. Mr. O'Brien has a penchant for the story of the Englishman. One extremely interesting one lingers in the memory from another volume, a story told at a formal dinner of an Englishman who discovered in the wilds of Canada the woman he loved and the man she married—a tale with more than a touch of the vital creative spark.

In the present volume Edith Storm has a story entitled "The Three Telegrams" that seems to endeavor to express for France what Margaret Prescott Montague's "From England to America" expressed of the spirit of Great Britain. The Storm story has a taint of woman's magazine sentimentality that Miss Montague's episode beautifully lacked. There are two psychological adventures also in this volume, one by John T. Wheelwright called "The Roman Bath," an adventure in the London of David Copperfield and Mr. Pickwick; the other by Stephen French Whitman, entitled "Amasement," a jump into the Florence of the sixteenth century. "Sheener," the story by Ben Ames Williams of the loyal little Jewish newsboy who scented the gentleman in a down-and-out Englishman, befriended him, only to be snubbed by the same gentleman when he "came back" a bit, is very keen narrative. Stories by Frances Gilchrist Wood, Wilbur Daniel Steele, Rose Sidney, Arthur Somers Roche, Lee Foster Hartman, Helen Coale Crew and Edwina Stanton Babcock complete the collection.

As a comment we might quote one of Mr. Hughes's small boys looking at the dawn and saying explosively, "Gosh, what do you want for 10 cents?" What does one want for 10 cents? Perhaps if one did not read Mr. O'Brien's introduction, his words about creation, criticism of life, the birth of a new type of national literature and all the rest, one would not reach the last page of his volume with such a feeling of flatness. Perhaps it is not fair to compare craftsmen with artists like Mrs. Gerould, Mrs. Sedgwick, H. G. Dwight—to mention products Mr. O'Brien classes as American—nor to contrast the output of American magazines for a year with the work of such younger European writers, for instance, as Seumas O'Kelly of "The Golden Barque," Thomas Burke of "Nights in London" and various Continental writers. For 10 cents one does not expect the artistry of a Leonard Merrick nor the driving power of a Chekhov, but, having known what short stories might be, one wonders why our "new national literature," as exemplified by the magazine short stories, continues, year after year, to fail short.

One remembers two stories published in the Atlantic many, many months ago, "Seth Miles and the Sacred Fire" and "The Knight's Move." Will any of the 1920 narratives linger in the memory as did those two stories? Out of our rich national background when shall we begin to create short stories that are as vital, as original, as expressive of a national and human interpretation of life as the poetry of Sandburg, Edgar Lee Masters and Frost; of plays like "Beyond the Horizon" and "The Emperor Jones;" novels like "The Age of Innocence" and the criticisms of Huneker and Randolph Bourne?

Has the commercialised magazine, with its standardised product, paralysed the imaginative power of the creators of the American short story so completely that only accepted artists like Mrs. Sedgwick and Mrs. Gerould dare to betray anything as literary as a fluid, beautiful style? What is the influence at work among the short story writers that has had the effect upon their work of what Mr. O'Brien calls "numbling silence?"

7,086,766 TONS OF SHIPPING IN WORLD'S YARDS

Lloyd's Register Finds This Represents Decline Of 1½ Percent Since Jan. 1

New York, April 24.—More than 7,000,000 gross tons of merchant vessels are reported as being in the shipyards of the world, says a statement by Lloyd's Register. Compared with the total on Jan. 1, the 7,086,766 tons, to be exact, represents a decline of less than 100,000 tons, nearly 1½ percent.

The actual decline in shipbuilding activity has been much sharper in the past three months than appears on the surface, says the statement. The total reported for Great Britain, 3,798,593 gross tons, is a gain of 89,000 tons on the Jan. 1 record, but there has been marked reduction in the volume of tonnage on which work is actually proceeding, Lloyd's Register finds.

"Included in the total in the hands of British shipyards are 497,000 gross tons of vessels which work has been suspended, and an additional 350,000 tons, the completion of which has been postponed, chiefly owing to the strike of the shipjoiners, which has interfered with the fitting out of a number of large liners and other vessels," the report continues. "Taking this total of 847,000 tons into consideration, therefore, the total of new ships on which work is proceeding in British shipyards is 2,951,593 tons, or about 20 percent less than the total at the beginning of the year.

"Additional indications of the conditions in British shipbuilding are furnished by the returns of launchings and new work begun during the first quarter of this year. New keels represented only 391,000 gross tons, in comparison with 503,000 for the last quarter of 1920, and 701,000 for the quarter ended April 1, 1920. Launchings during the quarter just ended represented 431,000 tons, as against 576,000 tons for the last three months of 1920. Even with the delays due to strikes and other causes, therefore, work is being completed more rapidly than new work is coming in."

Returns from American shipyards show that the decline which has been in effect more than a year continues, Lloyd's says. The total construction reported under way on April 1 is 1,102,000 tons, only slightly more than 40 percent of the American total a year ago. The aggregate for all other countries except the United States, Great Britain and Germany (for the last-named no official returns are available) shows a gain of about 25,000 tons over the January total, Lloyd's estimates.

"The apparent world decrease in shipbuilding activity during the last quarter, therefore, has been not far from a million tons, a decline of about 12½ percent," the statement says.

"In some directions, however, gains are shown in the volume of construction under way. These are most marked in the case of France, which now stands next to the United Kingdom and the United States as a shipbuilding nation, having displaced Holland during the last quarter. A year ago France, with only 240,000 tons under way, was led by Japan, Italy and Holland, and was constructing only 9,000 tons more than the British dominions. Today, with 427,000 tons building, she has nearly two and a half times the total for the British dominions, and leads Japan and Italy by 133,000 tons and 75,000 tons, respectively.

"Japan shows a small gain in the total under construction, as compared with the previous quarter, and Italy, Holland and the British dominions slight decreases."

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paragoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children unless you or your physician know of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

THAT BACK PAIN OF YOURS

Have You Tried The Remedy That Cured Mr. Reed?

"Exposure to cold and rain while in a run-down condition brought on an attack of lumbago," says Mr. Ricy M. Reed, an employee of the Southern Pacific railroad who lives at No. 3206 San Franco street, Los Angeles, Cal. "There was a dull aching pain across the small of my back. This pain was constant and became especially acute when I stopped over. The pain was worse during damp weather. My appetite was poor and this, coupled with loss of sleep, gradually reduced my strength.

"I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a newspaper and decided to give the remedy a trial. After five days' treatment I noticed that the pills were helping me for the pains were less severe. I continued the treatment for seven weeks at the end of which time the pain was entirely gone. I can eat a hearty meal now and have gained strength. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all in need of a tonic."

Latest Works Of Fiction

Dead Man's Plack And An Old Thorn. By W. H. Hudson. New York: E. P. Dutton and Co.

It is a part of the genius of W. H. Hudson—it is, indeed, the actual, inclusive quality of his genius as a writer—that he identifies himself wholly with the thing of which he writes, and that the reader's own visioning of it becomes, therefore, as natural as it is real. Simple as it is in its exquisite beauty and clarity, Hudson's style is not easy to describe, and the reason for this lies in its very perfection—the "style" is the thing itself. The tropical forest of "Green Mansions," the bright and clear Utopia of "A Crystal Age," the peopled wanderings of "The Purple Land," and the Wiltshire Downs as we see them in "A Shepherd's Life"—they are all sensed unforgetably; and they themselves—no mannerisms or peculiarities—are W. H. Hudson's "style." So now, when he tells us a tale of Saxon England, the thing is here before us in a complete and effortless perfection.

"Dead Man's Plack" is a story of a thousand years ago, and Mr. Hudson's introduction is in itself extremely interesting. One Summer, he tells us, he fell into the habit of going day after day to watch the insects in a particular spot in an oak forest in Hampshire; and this place was near the spot "known from of old as Dead Man's Plack," where a stone cross stood to mark the place where, "according to tradition handed from father to son, King Edgar slew his friend and favorite, Earl Athelwold, when hunting in the forest." It chanced that some conversation about the cross in the forest was followed by a discussion as to the authenticity of the ancient tale. And then, he says, "I found that I was not yet free of it. It remained with me, but in a new way—not as an old story in old books, but as an event, or series of events, now being re-enacted before my very eyes. I actually saw and heard it all, from the very beginning to the dreadful end; and this is what I am now going to relate." So he tells it and so it stays with us—no modern retelling, yet no imitation of old chronicles, but simply a vivid picture, a living thing. And just as "Green Mansions" glows forever with the brilliance of the tropical forest, so here in "Dead Man's Plack" a Saxon England is recreated for us, and can never die.

The story is of Edgar the Peaceful, of Earl Athelwold, and of the beautiful Elfrida who so dreadfully became Queen and again so dreadfully became Queen Mother, and is a simple, savage story of a simple, savage time. It is the kind of tale that may be found, in many a version but essentially the same, in all old histories, a story of ambition and passion, of treachery, cruelty, remorse. But in the mastery of its telling it becomes a classic thing. It is something that no lover of what is good and real in literature should miss.

It is interesting to see, too, how in this tale of a thousand years ago, into which his individual genius enters so fully, Hudson's love of nature finds the expression that he makes always so beautiful. His keen observation and his exquisite use of words have never been more markedly present than in, for example, such a passage as this:

"Here was the perfect seclusion she desired; here she could spend her hours and days as she ever loved to do in the open air without sight of any human countenance excepting those of her own people, since now strange faces had become hateful to her. . . . Here she had got out of the old and into a new world better suited, to her changed spirit. For in that world of men and women, in which she had lived until now, all nature had become interfused with her own and other people's lives—passions and hopes and fears and dreams and ambitions. Now it was as if an obscuring purple mist had been blown away, leaving the prospect sharp and clear to her sight as it had never been before. A wide prospect whose grateful silence was only broken by the cry or song of some wild bird. Great thickets of dwarf thorn tree and brambles and gorse, aflame with yellow flowers or dark to blackness by contrast with the pale verdure of the earth. And open reaches of elastic turf, its green suffused or sprinkled with red or blue or yellow, according to the kind of flowers proper to the season and place. The sight, too, of wild creatures—fallow deer, looking yellow in the distance against the dark gorse; a flock of bustard taking to flight on her approach would rush away, their spread wings flashing like silver white in the brilliant sunshine. She was like them on her horse borne swiftly as on wings above the earth but always near it. . . . Sky and earth, with thorny brakes and grass and flowers and wild creatures, with birds that flew low and others soaring up into heaven—what was the secret meaning it had for her? She was like one groping for a key in a dark place. Not a human figure visible, not a sign of human occupancy on that expanse! Was this, then, the secret of her elation? The all-powerful, dreadful God she was at emnity with, whom she feared and fled from, was not here."

It is a happy fortune that has brought "An Old Thorn" within book covers with "Dead Man's Plack." This shorter story, which was originally published in The English Review a number of years ago, is probably the only narrative we have (the only one to Mr. Hudson's knowledge) which deals with "that rare and curious subject, the survival of tree worship" in England. But it will live in the reader's mind as a piteous and haunting human tragedy—the story of a young countryman who was hanged (and his was only a century ago) for stealing a sheep. Having a close kindship to the records and traditions that the author has presented so vividly in "A Shepherd's Life," it is none the less, in its story of an ancient superstition's survival, a fitting companion to the tale of the England of a thousand years ago. This new book of Hudson's must have a permanent place in our libraries.

MONEY IS STRONGE ON LONDON MARKE

Anglo-Italian Cross Rate Improves; Rate Of Price Fall Lessens

Tokio, April 20. The British Government has altered the sale of Treasury Bills and buyers are asked to send their tenders for what they want. The object of this alteration is to restore the money market to normal by removing the influence of the Treasury Bill discount rates to determine money values in the general market. The money market receives it with gratification, says a weekly bank cable.

Since the announcement of this alteration, the sale of the Treasury Bills has increased, strengthening the market more or less. Day to day money is quoted at 5½ percent per annum. Weekly call loans are quoted at 5½ percent per annum. Three month' bills are discounted at 3⅛ percent per annum. The Bank of England's specie reserve shows an increase by £2,100. The Bank reserve ratio is 13.7 percent.

The Anglo-American cross rate is quoted at $3.92¼. The Anglo-Italian rate has improved, being up to 79½ lire.

The coal miners' strike is exercising an evil influence all round. The Continental countries' orders for coal from the United States are fast increasing.

March's imports into the United Kingdom amounted to £93,741,000, while exports were valued at £75,695,000.

The price of commodities was much slower in its fall in March than in February. The March index number was 5.097.

KINGMAN & BROS.
How to Preserve the Teeth
In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion there are settled on the teeth, some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.
Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.
The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consists in:—
(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly
(2) Filing with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francaise de Changhai

MUNICIPAL LOAN OF 1921

(20,000 debentures of Tls. 100 each)

Rate of interest 8% per annum

The "Conseil d'Administration Municipale de la Concession Francaise de Changhai" hereby invite subscriptions for 20,000 debentures of Tls. 100 each, according to the resolution passed at their General Meeting on the 30th May, 1921.

The conditions on which the Debenture Certificates will be issued are:—

1°—The Debenture Certificates are transferable, and the person whose name is entered in the Register of Debenture Certificate or Certificates, shall alone be recognised and treated by the Council as the lawful and rightful holder and owner of such Debenture Certificate or Certificates.

2°—The loan will be redeemable at par (Tls. 100) in not less than 10 years and not more than 30 years, from 1st July, 1931 and according to the figures determinated by the Council.

3°—The loan will bear interest at 8% per annum, payable on the 30th day of June and 31st of December in each year, when interest warrants will be issued to the registered owners.

4°—The property and income of the Municipality, deducting those which serve as security provided in the Municipal Loans of 1903, 1911, 1914 and 1916 are the security for the repayment of the money advanced and for the interest thereon in the present loan. The Members of the French Municipal Council are not personally liable in any way for the payment of either principal or interests.

5°—The Debenture Certificates will be issued and bear interest from 1st July, 1921.

6°—Applications for debentures will be received at the Secretary's Office, Rue du Consulat, from June 20 next, A cheque representing the amount of debentures asked for and payable on June 30th must be deposited at the same time.

7°—Applications for Debentures under par will not be recognised by the Council.

8°—For further informations, apply to Mr. P. LEGENDRE, Secretary, French Municipal Council.

Shanghai, 31st May, 1921.

CREPE
Awarded Standard First Latex	Nil
Equal to Standard First Latex	31/30½
Off Color Latex	30½/21½
Fine Brown	23½/20
Good Brown	17½/14½
Good Dark	16/13
Barky	12/9
SCRAP
Virgin and Pressed	Nil
Loose	Nil

Catalogued for Sale: 1,551,651 lbs. (about 693 tons).

Offered: 1,118,016 lbs. (about 499 tons).

Sold: 699,217 lbs. (about 312 tons).

The London market has practically remained unchanged during the past week with a fairly steady tone. On account of the Whitsun-holidays, however, very little business has been transacted.

At the local auctions today there was a fair demand for nearly all grades, and out of 499 tons offered 312 tons found buyers. The quantity catalogued for sale was, however, unusually small.

No lots of Awarded Standard Sheet were sold, as sellers would not accept buyers' bids of 29 cents.

Sheet equal to Standard found buyers at about last week's prices.

There was a moderate demand for Off Quality Sheet.

The few lots of Awarded First Latex Crepe catalogued were withdrawn.

Crepe equal to Standard and Off Color Latex met with a fair competition.

Fine Brown, Dark and Barky Crepes changed hands at prices slightly higher than last week.

N.B.—The above prices for Standard Quality Sheet and Crepe are only paid for small lots at the auctions, whereas bigger quantities in the outside market generally fetch from 1 cent to 1½ above those figuers.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

June 1, 1921

Spot and forward bar silver were each down 3/8d. in London yesterday.

The New York price declined to 57½ cents and the London-New York cross rate improved to 389. The official rates were unchanged from yesterday with the exception of the Hongkong rate which was dropped to 76 and the Rupee rate raised to 248.

The market throughout the day was about steady and business was done at a fraction under yesterday's rate, the bulk of the Sterling T.T. business being put through at rates varying between 3/3⅞ and 3/4.

Gold Dollars were steady at 65 for near and forward delivery. Speculators were reported to have sold silver in London yesterday and the market there as here seems to be featureless.

Silver quotations in Bombay are up so it would appear as if the Indian bazaars will still continue to buy moderately in London. As long as this buying continues we can hardly expect any particular drop in silver.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows in their exchange circular for week ending yesterday.

Exchange: After rising to 34⅛d. the London price of Silver at 33¾d. is ⅜d. higher than last week. The New York-London cross-rate dropped from 3.96½ to 3.89, but New York's price for silver is quoted 57½ i.e. ½ lower than at the date of our last circular. Our official quotation for T/T on London has remained unchanged at 3/2d., but with tightness for "end of the month" money in some quarters 2d. premium and higher has been offering for cash. Exports remain dull, and with the opening of the new month money appears easier. We close steady, with 3/3¾ offered for T-T on London.

Our stocks of Silver are reported as follows:

Sycee and Bar Silver, Tls. 37,520,000, a decline of Tls. 1,550,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars, $26,920,000, a decline of $10,080,000.

Estimated value in Taels Tls. 56,902,000 as against Tls. 55,305,000 held at this time last year.

Presentation of the Shield by Lady Fraser.

Saluting of National Flags.

Troops will be representated by one patrol in each competition as a general rule, though the whole troop may take part in the Display.

All judges are requested to attend in uniform, either S.V.C. or Ex-Service.

Shepherd's Cafe are catering for the visitors at their usual charges.

The result of Saturday's BIG PUSH amounted to about $1,600 and the Association would like to take this opportunity of thanking the public for the generous way in which they treated the Scouts. The order in which the Troops sold tickets resulted as follows:

French Troop ..... First
Public School Troop ....Second
Cathedral School Troop ...Third
Thomas Hanbury Troop Fourth
U.S.A. Troop ..... Fifth

The French Troop are to be heartily congratulated on their position and they will have the honor of marching on to the Camp Ground first with colors flying and band playing. They will strike the first tent and be the first troop to camp there, provided they retain this position when the total number of tickets sold has been definitely settled after the Jamboree is over.

There will be a Scout Council Meeting in the Church House sometime in June to settle the Scout Camping Ground question and any other business which may arise.

Chooses Fists As Weapons, Challenge To Duel Dropped

Paris, April 23.—Yesterday was a stormy day in the French Chamber. Not less than two Deputies believed themselves insulted during the debate on amnesty for army and navy mutineers. One took the course of appealing to the President, but the President wisely answered that he had not heard the insult.

The other Deputy, M. Desire Ferry, took another course. He sent two friends to his fellow Deputy, M. Levasseur, to ask him to arrange to settle the matter on the field of honor. But the day of dueling is past.

Showing his hands to witnesses, M. Levasseur declared: "These are all that nature gave me to fight with."

The witnesses returned to their principal and informed him that this opponent was willing to box, but would not fight otherwise. So far the challenge has not been taken up.

Finance and Foreign Trade

DISCUSSING business and financial conditions in the United States, with special reference to the passage by the Lower House of Congress of the Young Emergency Tariff Bill imposing temporary duties on agricultural products entering the United States, the Guaranty Trust Company of New York says:

Although this legislation is urged on behalf of the farmers of the country, it is doubtful if the placing of a temporary embargo against imports at this time will remedy the conditions complained of. Measures of this character can only produce results which, in the end, will prove uneconomic and unsound and will not reach the fundamental cause of the present unfortunate plight in which the farmer is now placed in respect of his unsold products.

Actual relief of the present condition can come only through the creation of new markets and outlets for the products of the farmer and not in artificially increasing the prices of goods entering into domestic consumption. This result can be accomplished best by opening up our foreign markets to take over our surplus supplies.

The enactment of such a tariff bill would be a step backward in the establishment of normal industrial conditions. The late war has brought radical changes in the relative positions of the countries of the world and the United States has become a great creditor nation, instead of a debtor nation. Following the Civil War, a high protective tariff, with now and then temporary reductions, was maintained; and at the close of the 19th century average rates were higher than at the beginning of the period. Notwithstanding the tendency of the high rates to exclude foreign goods from our markets, the harmful effects were limited by the fact that throughout the period we were a debtor nation. The annual excess of exports maintained, with two unimportant exceptions, from 1874 on, represented in large part the payment of interest and dividends on foreign capital invested in this country.

Today, the situation is quite the reverse. It is not possible for Europe to send securities sufficient to establish the necessary credits. Neither is Europe in a position to send us gold in the quantities which would be required. There remains, then, but one way in which Europe can pay for commodities purchased here. We must take goods in exchange for the products of farm and mine and mill which we are prepared to send to her and which the restoration of her normal industrial life so urgently requires.

The future prosperity of the country depends largely upon our activities in foreign fields of commerce and a policy so archaic and provincial as to shut off our commercial intercourse with the world cannot remedy the unfavorable conditions against which we are now fighting.

The total foreign trade of the United States for March showed a decline of more than $700,000,000 from the figures for March, 1920. Exports for the month totaled only $384,000,000, as compared with $489,000,000 in February and $820,000,000 in the corresponding month a year ago. Imports, valued at $352,000,000, were larger by $37,000,000 than the total for February and compare with $524,000,000 in March, 1920. For the nine months ended March, 1921, exports totaled $5,509,000,000, as against $6,050,000,000 for the corresponding period a year earlier. Imports for the nine months totaled $3,009,000,000 as against $3,759,000,000 for the nine months ended March, 1920. March exports were the smallest for any month since the beginning of the World War, while imports made the largest monthly total for any month in 1921. The excess of exports over imports for March, $132,000,000, was the smallest excess since last August.

Economic conditions in the United States are vitally affected by the state of industry and commerce in other countries. The recent decline in the volume of our exports reflects the disturbed conditions abroad. The prolonged uncertainty in respect to economic settlements growing out of the war has reacted unfavorably on business here, and American business men will welcome any constructive effort directed toward the stabilizing of conditions in Europe. The necessity meanwhile for the co-operation of all elements of our body politic for the encouragement of the country's foreign trade is patent.

Impressive Cosmical Motions

BY EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

(Director Mt. Lowe Observatory)

Go draw an absolutely straight line from the north celestial pole, southward through the absolute zenith, through the south celestial pole, through the nadir on the opposite side of the universe, and back to the north pole. The result will be a great circle of the celestial sphere. The semicircle passing through the zenith will be the upper and that through the nadir the lower cosmical meridian. If drawn through the absolute first geometrical point of the zodiacal constellation Aries, it will be the grand standard astronomical meridian. From this all right ascensions and longitudes are measured to all celestial bodies whatever.

Right ascension consists of twenty-four hours' time measured ever to the east from this majestic cosmical line. Each line measured to position of planet, star, comet or nebula is drawn exactly parallel to the celestial equator, which is the earth's equator conceived to be expanded to infinity.

Celestial longitude is measured from the grand meridian ever to the ast through 360 degrees, but the lines are drawn parallel to the basic standard plane in which lies the earth's orbit. Then the two sets of lines must be inclined to each other at an angle equal to the obliquity of the ecliptic, which is the angle of inclination of the axis of the earth from a perpendicular toward the plane of its orbit. This angle for January 1, 1921, was 23 degrees 27 minutes 7,8232 seconds of arc.

Let us see what is happening, by noting the true positions of a sun, the one selected for this note being the giant sun named Alpheratz, the scientific name being Alpha Andromeda. Its right ascension on January 1, 1879, was 0 h. 2 m. 8.57 s. of time, and on January 1, 1921, 0 h. 4 m. 18.725 s.—a gain of 2 m. 10.155 s. in 41 years. Motion had to occur; the question is what moved. But all stars in the sidereal structure increase R. A.

The star Polaris, our present North Star, really a colossal sun, was, on January 1, 1879, in R. A. 1 h. 14 m. 25 s.; and on January 1, 1921, 1 h. 33 m., an increase of 18 m. 35 s. in 41 years. The polar star appeared to move. Declination in the sky is distance either north or south of the plane of the celestial equator. The declination of Alpha Andromeda was on January 1, 1879, 28 deg. 25 m. 35.5 s.; and on January 1, 1921, 28 d. 39 m. 27.78 s., an increase in 41 years of 13 m. 52.28 s. But all stars north of the celestial equator increased their distances from it.

Let us see how the stars in exactly the opposite side of the celestial sphere from Alpha Andromeda are affected, selecting the star Beta Corvi, in R. A. near 12 h., half way around, and in declination south 22 d. 57 m. 32.46, January 1, 1921, but in 1879 it was 22d. 43 m. 36.5 s., an increase of 13 m. 45.96 s. in the 41 years. Thus the stars on both sides of the equator increase incessantly their distance from that ground basic plane. And the R. A. of Beta Corvi in 1879 was 12 h. 28 m. 2.8 s.; and in 1921, 12 h. 30 m. 14.91 s; also an increase of 2 m. 12.11 s. in 41 years.

The ancients, even the astute Egyptians, were sorely puzzled. They could not possibly imagine the hidden cause.

The center of the sun, apparently coming from south to north around and about March 21, stands for an instant on the grand meridian. But at the same infinitesimal of time the earth's center and with it the plane of its equator forces the sun's center. I like to watch these motions in the great telescope. But the Egyptians, Babylonians and Greeks, by watching during centuries without telescopes, found that it was the equator that moved. The equinox moved from east to west. And Hipparchus found that the motion of retrogradation is near 50 seconds of arc annually. Even he could not think of the cause.

Newton discovered it in the fact that the earth is not a sphere, but an ellipsoid, having a ring of matter 13,647 miles deep around it at the equator. This gives the attraction exerted by the masses of the sun and moon a leverage on the principle of a gyroscope, and caused the earth to assume the role of a spinning peg top. The axis moves around the axis of the orbit in a circle twice the diameter of its distance from the pole, or obliquity.

Simon Newcomb found the exact rate of recession, 50.2564 seconds annually, or one circuit in 25,788 years.

Friar Bacon's Gunpowder

Quotations From His Writings In Support Of Cipher Manuscript Revelations

BY IRVING R. BACON

Revelations that Roger Bacon, the thirteenth century friar, used the telescope and was 500 years in advance of his time in other discoveries have attracted wide attention since they were made public by Professor W. R. Newbold of the University of Pennsylvania recently.

Other revelations are promised as progress is made in translating the cipher manuscript supposed to contain discoveries and speculations of Bacon, set down by himself.

But it is not necessary to await the full reading of the cipher for evidence of Bacon's great genius as a scientist, for not only does he describe in his known writings instruments which are nothing if not telescopes and microscopes, and not only does he tell how to make gunpowder, repeatedly mentioning the formula—saltpetre, sulphur and carbon—but he even goes into a detailed description of an object which is so unmistakably a firecracker that, if one didn't know it was written in the thirteenth century, it might be thought to have been part of the program for a Fourth of July celebration.

Concerning his reputation as a magician he himself is at much pains, time and again throughout his works, to prove the futility of black magic or any virtue in incantations and hocuspocus. Nevertheless, it is equally clear from his writings that he was a firm believer in the power of magic, for, to quote one of his many passages on this subject, selected from his "Opus Majus" (Greater Work):

"For if, moreover, any malignant person concentrates his thoughts powerfully upon the injury of another and desires this ardently and intends it to come to pass, with a feeling of certainty that it shall come to pass, and vehemently feels that he can produce the harm, there is no doubt that nature will obey the thoughts of his soul."

Stranger than all the doubts as to the relation of the "Admirable Doctor" (the appellation given Friar Bacon by his contemporaries) to the telescope, microscope, gunpowder and magic, is the absence of any reference in the articles written about him concerning the fact that he anticipated even the era of steamboats, railroads and airships, drew a vivid picture of an instrument which might have served as a model for destroying life by wholesale in war.

As if to atone for his hints in regard to devices designed to destroy life he wrote a work on "The Cure of Old Age and Preservation of Youth," wherein he indulged himself to his heart's content in cryptic statements designed to conceal from the vulgar reader the secrets intended for the wise. For with him ciphers were a hobby, and in a chapter of his "Letter on the Secret Works of Art and Nature and the Nullity of Magic" he describes seven sorts of secret writing, concluding thus:

THE SECRET INVOLVED

"I have deemed it necessary to touch upon these ciphers because I may have occasion to employ them myself, on account of the greatness of the secret involved: and by this reference to them I will have aided thee as much as I can.

The "secret involved" was in regard to "how to make the philosopher's stone" whereof in three chapters of the "Letter," he furnishes three methods, in the recipes for which he certainly must have had recourse to his cipher, as there does not appear to be much surface meaning to the sentences of the context itself. And in the third method of manufacture of the "philosopher's stone," which he calls the philosopher's egg, he resorts to several altogether meaningless words, such as in the following sentence: "But of saltpetre Luru Vopo Vir Can Vtriet of sulphur, and thus you will cause a thunder and corruscations, if you understand the artifice."

But immediately succeeding this sentence is the following one:

"Be sure to consider, however, whether I am speaking enigmatically of according to the truth." And again, "See you do not fall asleep here, for it contains a very great and useful secret."

And further on he says that "this is regarded a simpler medicine than any other you can find, and purer; and it is good for fevers and passions of mind and body—very! And whoever will unlock these things will have a key which opens and no one closes; and when he has closed it, no one will open."

The work on "The Cure of Old Age" appears to be the only one of Roger Bacon's writing ever fully translated into English. This translation was made in 1683 by Richard Browne, an M. L., of the London Medical College. Why Bacon's other writings should have been permitted to remain buried in their original Latin during so many centuries, while so many less interesting and important writers have been honored with translations, is one of the paradoxes of human nature.

Professor Newbold's revelations are corroborated by what the "Admirable Doctor's" writings published long ago already contain in a form requiring no cipher key. Perfectly clear descriptions of the telescope and the microscope objects are found not only in portions of Bacon's "Opus Tertium" ("Third Work") published in 1909 and 1912, but in Bacon's "Opus Majus" which was published in England nearly 150 years ago. For instance, consider this excerpt from the Fifth Part of the "Opus Majus," wherein the science of optics is discussed:

"Take a spherical segment of crystal or glass, and if the height of the segment is smaller than the radius, letters and small objects will seem larger when the convex side is turned toward the eye. For the eye is then, as it were, in a thinner, the object in a denser, medium between the center and the eye. Thus the optic angle is larger, and hence also the image becomes larger and nearer. Wherefore this makes a good instrument for aged persons and others who have weak eyes, for by this means they can see, in an adequate size, objects which would otherwise be too small.

"Likewise if the height of the segment is greater than the radius, or if we have a hemisphere, the result is that the picture of the object which lies outside the center of the medium, afar off, also becomes larger. And similar phenomena will result if you use crystal bodies with plane surfaces; but the convex form is the better."

So much for the microscope. Now, in regard to the telescope, here is what Bacon says:

"Refracted rays enable us to see very large objects as very small. Likewise what is very far off can be seen as very near, and vice versa. For lenses can be so adjusted between the eye and an object that the refraction is directed whithersoever and at whatever optic angle we desire; so that the object may be seen as very near or very far, according as we wish. And thus we are enabled to read the smallest imaginable letters from an incredible distance. And as it lies in our power to increase the optic angle to any degree we desire, a little boy may take on the size of a giant; a man that of a mountain, and an army as if it were immensely great; and likewise what is very distant can be seen as if it were very near; or vice versa. Indeed, we could, so to speak, draw down the sun and moon from the sky, and thereby throw an enemy into a panic."

Whether Roger Bacon, with all his inventiveness, was unable to discover any higher or nobler use for the telescope than that of scaring an enemy is hard to determine. A solution may be supplied by a consideration of the circumstances under which the three main works of the "Admirable Doctor" were written. In this connection a little of his history will be pertinent. Born of wealthy parents, in Ilchester, England, in 1214, he studied at Oxford and afterward at the University of Paris, where he obtained a doctor's degree. Returning to England, he entered the Franciscan Order, and became a professor of "things in general" at Oxford. His classes were crowded, and pretty soon his fame extended from one end of Europe to the other.

So far in advance of his age was he in his views that it was not long before he was accused of heresy and sorcery; and, on the strength of the former accusation, his superior interdicted his use of pen and paper. For ten years he remained under this prohibition. At last he succeeded in sending a letter to Pope Clement IV., who was a liberal-minded patron of learning in all its branches and had been Papal Nuncio to England. In this letter he briefly outlined his theories concerning science, art and literature, and begged the Pope to aid him in the promulgation of these theories. He told the Pope that he was prevented from doing so by the interdict placed upon him by his superior, and also by his vow of poverty, which made it impossible for him to procure the books and instruments required for the experiments which he contemplated. Pope Clement immediately ordered him to send copies of his works, and made it plain that interference by superiors or others would not be tolerated.

In compliance with this command, Bacon wrote the "Opus Majus" ("Greater Work") and sent it to the Pope. Receiving no answer, he wrote another more comprehensive work, entitled "Opus Minus" ("Lesser Work"); and when no response came concerning this, the indefatigable friar wrote his "Opus Tertium" ("Third Work"), which was an encyclopedic affair, wherein everything contained in the "Opus Majus" was treated of in an analytical way.

Now it so happened that, for all his love of learning, Pope Clement IV. had his hands so full with governmental and spiritual cares engendered by a war-torn world that he died before he had a chance to examine the merits of Bacon's books.

Clement's successor was the very man of all men whom Friar Bacon had the least reason to look to for assistance—none other than the Franciscan superior who had put a ban upon his literary activity.

A TIRELESS STUDENT

Bacon was now in his 70th year, but as tireless a student and as uncompromising a champion of what he regarded as true as ever, hence we find him again in trouble and cast into prison, his new superior having taken the precaution first to obtain the consent of Nicholas VI. before taking this step. After he had been in prison five or six years Bacon wrote the work on "The Cure of Old Age" and sent it to Pope Nicholas. By this means he hoped to mollify the latter's resentment for the complaint made to the preceding Pope. Whether Bacon's expectation was realised is not known. All that is known is that he died some time between 1292 and 1294, but whether in or out of prison is still undecided.

In view of the fact that he sought to win leniency from Pope Nicholas by dedicating a book to him, it is not at all unlikely that he similarly made statements in the "Opus Majus" and other works addressed to the preceding Pope with a view to gaining that Pope's assent to his views. And as armies were one of the great things needed by rulers in that warlike age, Bacon probably thought he was making a great point with Clement IV. by telling him that a telescope could be used for magnifying armies to so great an extent that an enemy would be thrown into panic by the sight.

In a letter on the "Secret Works of Art and Nature and the Futility of Magic," written presumably to Pope Clement IV., Bacon speaks of "some wonderful artificial instruments." One of the editors has divided the letter into chapters, and Chapter IV. contains the following:

"I will now speak first of the wonderful works of art and nature, in order, later, to point out their causes and manner of operation. Therein there is nothing magical. And thus it will be realised that magical power is less potent than that which produces these works, nor is magic of the same dignity. And, first of all, the results of art alone. For machinery for navigating without oarsmen can be constructed, so that the largest vessels, whether employed on rivers or sea-going, may be propelled by one person at a greater rate of speed than if they were filled with oarsmen.

"Vehicles, too, can be made, capable of going at an incredible velocity, without the use of animals. * * * Likewise there can be constructed instruments for flying; so that a person can sit in the center of the device and operate an ingenious mechanism by which artificial wings are made to beat the air. * * * Likewise a small mechanism for raising and lowering weights of well-nigh incalculable size, than which nothing can be more useful. For with this instrument, the height of which does not exceed three inches and of equal breadth and even less depth, a person is able to release himself and his companions from the dangers of a prison by raising and then descending.

"And it would also be easy to construct an instrument by the aid of which one man could draw, with great violence, unto himself a thousand; even against their will; and so likewise in regard to other things which one might desire to attract. So also can there be made instruments to enable one to walk on the bottom of the sea without danger."

OLD COMMANDERS' YARNS

(The late Admiral Lord Fisher)

"I knew an old Admiral in China whose survey of the China Seas is one of the most celebrated on record.

He told me himself that this is how he did it.

He used to anchor in some convenient place every few miles right up the Coast of China. He had a Chinese Interpreter on board.

He sent this man to every fishing village and offered a dollar for every rock and shoal.

No rock or shoal has ever been discovered since my beloved old Commander finished his survey!"

WELL-MR. JIGGS DO YOU DRINK ANY THING SINCE PROHIBITION?
YES- ANY THING!
I'M GLAD IT IS HERE I DEVOTE MY TIME TO COLORING MY MEER SCHAUM PIPE!
HOW LONG WILL IT TAKE TO DO IT?
OH! THIS PIPE WILL BE COLORED IN ABOUT A YEAR-
OH! THAT'S EASY-
AND IT WON'T COST YOU AS MUCH AS IT DID FOR YOUR NOSE!

THE TONDEUSE RASOIR

is the only hair clipping device which shaves the hair as close to the skin as perfectly as a razor. It combines the advantages of a fine blade razor and of hair clippers, without the disadvantage of employing soap.

THE TONDEUSE RASOIR

can be used for several years without changing the cutting combs and without requiring sharpening. NO STROP, CUP, SOAP or BRUSH are needed.

TRIMS YOUR HAIR & SHAVES CLEANLY

comes as a blessing to ladies for shaving under the arms, etc., etc.

FAR EASTERN BASEBALL IS STILL IN AIR

Japanese Take First Game But Filipinos Win In Second

OVER 5,000 OUT

Record Crowd Sees 1-0 Batiles: Play Again Saturday

BY W. A. KELLY

FIVE thousand keen baseball fans of every nationality of the Cosmopolitan Far East swarmed over the stands, the fields, and the playing ground itself yesterday afternoon to witness the contest between the best baseball nine that Japan has ever produced and the cream of the talent of the Philippine Islands. There were three championships at stake and every individual among the spectators, Oriental or Occidental, realised it, and rooted wildly, or held their breath abated, as the occasion of the moment demanded.

The program scheduled one game between Japan and Philippines but by special agreement a double-header was played, as the first two of a series of three upon which the championships of the Far Eastern (Olympic) Games, the Open International Games, and of the Orient itself, will depend. The third game will be played on Saturday.

BOTH GAMES 1-0

The two games yesterday leaves the settlement of Japanese or Filipino supremacy in baseball still in doubt. The first game, a nine-inning affair resulted in a 1-0 win for the Nipponese, and the second went to the Philippine Islanders by the same score after seven innings of heart-breaking play.

If there has been discussion as to the merits of these two nines before, there is as much now. They each have won over China by a 15-1 score, and they have split a gruelling double-header by 1-0 results. One coach of the Japanese nine, after the double bill was finished, said that in his belief the capabilities of the two opposing teams stood exactly as their performances during the present Olympics—even. A coach of the Philippines, immediately after their win of the second game was more confident than ever. The day, he said, had told Japan's story to him, and when the final game was played with three championships depending upon it, he was certain his men would be ranked as the winners.

Yesterday's games gave Shanghai an idea of what a World's Series in America might be like, where many, many thousands of baseball-wise spectators follow every movement of each and all of the players. It was a World Series to the Orientals—it was the year's championships for half a world.

JAPANESE FILL STANDS

The Japanese perhaps were more seriously and anxiously interested in the outcome of the contests. They occupied the west half of the field in a solid mass, and an enormous overflow ranked in the circle that enclosed the grounds in an entrance-proof ring. They were up on every move of the play and hung in distressful anxiety on every decision of the splendid arbiters of play, Bill Chapman and Terry McGowan.

When the winning run was scored in the "Lucky" seventh inning of the first game the Japanese rose as one, their cheer leader took his place in front of the thousands of rooters, and a "Banzai" or its baseball equivalent was given that impressed deeply even the Filipinos, who knew that their first game was lost. Shanghai at that moment realised, maybe for the first time at that moment what this baseball series means to Japan.

The Philippines missed an alluring chance to score one or more runs in the first game yesterday. The neglected opportunity came in the second inning, when Fernando walked, stole second and took third on Mori's bad throw to second. None were out. Ciriaco fanned. Tingzon, a sterling player, came to bat. The squeeze play was signalled.

Ono, the heady pitcher, who worked both games, took his cue, and threw to Tingzon wide and far from the plate. The slugging batsman hadn't a chance to hit, and Fernando, racing in from third confident of a covering bunt, had less. Mori, the best catcher ever seen in Shanghai, had the ball waiting for the running Filipino, and it was a baseball trifle to throw him out to

Humorist, Outsider, Wins English Derby; Favorite, Craig An Eran, Is Second

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 1.—First place in the Derby was taken by Humorist (Donoghue), second by Craig an Eran (F. Bullock) and third by Lemonora (J. Childs).

The great English classic was evidently won by an outsider, Humorist not even carrying mention in any of the betting reports received here. The flash of the results was received at a late hour and no details were available, nor was there any information regarding the winning horse to be found in the Turf Guide. Craig an Eran was favorite in the betting indications cabled by Reuter's, being quoted yesterday at 4 to 1. Lemonora was an 11 to 1 shot.

CHINESE ELEVEN REPEATS VICTORY RETAINING TITLE

Football Men From South China Win From Japan, 4-0

The Chinese football team ably justified all expectations and clinched the Far Eastern championship in this division yesterday when it defeated the Japanese team by a score of 4 to nothing. The victory of the Chinese team over the Filipinos on Monday last was by a score of one to nothing.

Yesterday's game was replete with spirited action on both sides, but the quick, short passing of the Cantonese lads was the decisive factor that wore through the vigorous defense of the Nipponese.

The Chinese scored two of their goals in the first period of play and repeated this performance in the second period. As an outcome of the football championship considerable interest has been manifested in the forthcoming contest that the victorious Chinese team will play on Saturday in the open games with the Shanghai British football team.

NARROW SQUEAK FOR CHINA QUINT BUT JAPAN LOSES

Chinese Get Championship By Winning, 30-27 After Up-Hill Fight

Fighting an uphill game the Chinese basketball team won from Japan in the second half of a bitterly contested game yesterday afternoon and copped the Far Eastern title. The score was 32-29 and the game was in doubt until the final whistle.

The victory gives China a clear title to the Far Eastern championship for the Chinese defeated the Filipino quintet by a score of 30-27 and the Philippines also defeated Japan.

The Chinese team did not show well in the first half of yesterday's game and when the Japanese were leading 20-19 when the whistle blew because the men from up North were loafing and could not seem to get together. Frequently the Chinese tried impossible long shots and refused to pass. In the second period the Chinese barely overcame the lead.

Two of the Japan team were disqualified for personal fouls but this was due to lack of experience rather than deliberate rough playing. Yokoyama and Hakamura were the men thrown out and it was a little unfortunate for the entire Japanese team played a thoroughly sportsmanlike game.

The basketballers, as well as the Japanese playing baseball, football and volleyball were praised on all sides for their excellent sportsmanship while the track and field representatives were also thorough gentlemen and sportsmen.

Japan and China suffered equally in the basketball game, officials calling sixteen fouls on each team.

Messrs. Glauque and McCloy were capable officials.

Tanaka Meets Aragon And Fargas Plays Tyau

BY W. S. A. POTT

In the morning's tennis yesterday, Fargas, Philippine Islands, easily defeated Okumura of Japan in straight sets 6-2, 6-2, 6-1. The Filipino took things pretty easily throughout and the Japanese player led only once, when the score was 2-1 in his favor in the opening set. Fargas came to the net at will and was in command of the situation at all times thereafter. In the third set after losing the first game, Fargas ran off six straight with the loss of only six points.

While Fargas was beating Okumura, Tyau of China fell an easy victim to the dashing play of F. Aragon. The Filipino second singles man put up a much better brand of tennis than he did the previous day against Okumura and earned a well-deserved victory in straight sets 6-2, 6-1, 6-2. His overhead work was sounder than it was on Tuesday, and he literally smothered the pretty, but soft game of his opponent.

The matches in the afternoon produced all the anticipated thrills. Tanaka fought his way through to a well-earned win against S. K. Ng, Hongkong's star player, and thereby evened up for the defeat which he suffered last fall in Hongkong when Ng took him into camp with comparative ease.

FIRST SET

Tanaka was slow in getting started, and Ng broke through on the first game and kept this advantage up to 4-2. It looked liked the Chinese player's set, but Tanaka suddenly found himself and captured three games. With the score 5-4 in his favor and 40-15 on his own service Ng rallied, broke through, and then led at 6-5. Ng took his own service, but Tanaka was playing the side lines too nicely and took the set at 8-6.

SECOND SET

The effort in the first set was too much for the Japanese player and his wily opponent had no trouble in capturing the second set in fifteen minutes with the loss of only one game. Tanaka forced four games to deuce, but he did not have the necessary punch to score the games.

Ng varied his game nicely with deep and short shots, and on several occasions enticed Tanaka to the net with a short chop and then outmaneuvered him with a

CHINESE VICTORS IN VOLLEYBALL; DEFEAT FILIPINOS

Several thousands saw China win the volleyball championship yesterday for the game followed the pentathlon and those in the stands rushed out to surround the court and watch the two classy teams battle.

China won the first game by a score of 21-9, having little difficulty in scoring by both serving and killing, but the Filipino came back strong in the second, trouncing the Cantonese, 21-11.

The third game was a bitterly fought affair in the early stages but the Filipinos weakened when the score was 15 all. Strong serving and an unusually powerful forward line brought victory to the Chinese.

The Chinese team was an interesting aggregation for foreigners as all but one of the men were from Canton and encouraged one another in their native dialect. The one young man from St. John's University found it necessary to give his advice in English—and the Southerners got him every time.

Mermen From Islands Nose Out Japanese By Taking Relay In Record Time; Final Score Is 21-20 And Dope Is Upset

Only the fire department regulations prevented there being an absolutely record house to witness the closing events of the Far Eastern Swimming Championships at the Municipal Bath last night and as it was there seldom has been such a crowd turning up for a swimming meet in Shanghai.

The Far Eastern Championships, which were the heavy viands of the evening, were relieved by certain little entremets in the nature of so-called "Gymkhana events" such as plunge for distance, fancy diving and picking up saucers, and these were very much enjoyed as they helped to vary the legitimate straight swimming events.

The result of the meet was that Japan lost her pride of place in the Far Eastern natatorial championships, a position which she has held uninterrupted since the inauguration of the contests.

The issue was in doubt right up to the final event, which was the team (or relay) race. Four a-side took part as representatives from the Philippines, Japan and China, and a regular ding-dong race resulted, which in itself was worth while going a long way to witness.

The race was practically a duel all the way between the Philippines and Japan, the Chinese swimmers being outclassed after the first length or two.

Japan led for four lengths by ever so slight a margin but the third Philippine representative, Senor Sotero Abreo drew up and made good the lee-way and the last (fourth) men, Ong Sing Guan (the name is scarcely Castilian) put victory across for the islands amid the most frantic demonstration of enthusiasm that has ever been heard in the Kung Boo tank.

In races of this kind it is extremely difficult to see that men do not start before their time, and to the casual onlooker, it seemed that more than one of the contestants got off his mark untimely but be that as it may, the verdict went to the Philippines and their rivals the Japanese were the first to tender them hearty congratulations.

The Islanders owe their success in the meet in large measure to the efficiency of their excellent coach, Capt. R. H. Parker, and the way (to take just one thing) in which they made the most of the innumerable turns (the length of the course being only 25 yards), showed clearly that they had been a well-coached team of mermen.

The following are the details of the evening's results:

100 yards back stroke
1.—P. Fernandez (Philippines).
2.—Y. Mochinaga (Japan).
3.—T. Iritani (Japan).
Time: 1:19 4-5.

Thousand Cavort In Colorful Drill At Hongkew Park

BY ELSIE McCORMICK

Yesterday was Ladies' Day at the Far Eastern Olympics. We do not refer especially to the foreign ladies on the grandstand who shrunk up like sea-urchins when Oriental enthusiasm inspired the onlookers to imitate a Holy Roller meeting or a rendering of "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight" with gestures. We were speaking particularly of the thousand Chinese girls who marched, drilled, cavorted, and romped on the great green oval ringed by the cinder-track in a panorama of shifting color and orderly variation.

The first part of the afternoon at the track was taken up chiefly by a standing-around match and debating class on the part of the officials and an endurance contest on the part of the audience. These events were the longest thus far staged at the track, as nothing obvious happened for an hour flat. We shared space with a select crowd of house-boys, ricsha coolies, and kindergarten children who occupied most of the room in the press-stand, holding down a splay-footed chair that threatened to collapse any moment like a ghost in a seance when somebody removes the broom-stick. It was quite aptly called the press-stand, as everyone pressed around us and we had to stand up.

IT WAS CHINA'S DAY

It was distinctly China's day, both in the grandstand and on the field. Japanese were greatly in the minority, and the cheers which greeted the two Chinese winners in track events seemed to come from all parts of the audience, no air-pockets of silence indicating a sector of the opposition.

After the conclusion of the Pentathlon, which would make a good name for a Pullman car or a tenement which has just raised its rents to the point of being an apartment-house, the Chinese girls on the northern and eastern grand-stands fluttered down to the field and made their debut as participants in the Far Eastern Olympic.

Led by the Soochow University band, which was busy trying to make brass instruments do the wobbly notes in "Listen to the Mocking Bird," nearly a thousand Chinese school-girls swung into marching formation on the cinder track and paraded proudly past the main grandstand.

Directly behind the band came the students of the Chinese Physical Training School, goose-stepping rigidly, with the girls of the Y.W.C.A. School of Physical Training following closely in the rear. Less precise was the marching of the other fifteen schools represented, but on the whole there were surprisingly few who failed to let the left foot know what the right was doing, and the amount of agreement achieved was considerably above that of a musical comedy chorus which left town recently.

CRUSADERS, TO DATE

Each school carried a rippling banner, and the general effect, as they stretched around the oval, was that of an army in the

Score Of 410 Made By Chinese Athlete In All-Around Event; Discus Record Goes; China Gets Title In Four Sports

FAR Eastern championships in football, basketball, volleyball and the pentathlon were won by China yesterday and the Chinese hope in the decathlon, Chu En-te, who bitterly disappointed yesterday, is expected to make a fight for the decathlon today.

As the Olympics near their end China is thus assured of four championships while the Philippine Islands have annexed titles in track and field sports and swimming. Baseball and tennis, both the singles and doubles, are yet to be decided, while the decathlon comes today. The Filipino victory in the swimming was a distinct surprise. The Japanese lost for the first time in ten years.

Tu Jung-tang's victory in the pentathlon was by far the best performance of the games for the husky lad added 51 points to any previous record, ran his teammate Chu En-te off field and made an average of nearly 82 percent. Tu made 410 points out of a possible 500, truly a remarkable exhibition of all-around prowess, for he won the mile, 220 yard dash, and the broad jump and was second in the discus throw and fourth in the shot put. Ten men competed.

Coscuelluela threw the discus 111 feet and 10 inches for a new Far Eastern record. The Filipino failed to qualify in the event on Monday because of the wet platter but yesterday he was in great shape and although he was but fourth in the pentathlon, he gathered glory unto himself and his country by hanging up the new mark in the discus.

Futamura, with 352 points, 52 points behind Tu Jung-tang, was second in the pentathlon and two other Japanese, Kozawa and Mihashi tied for third place with 340 points. Futamura was but two points behind the record established by Chu En-te at Manila two years ago when he won both pentathlon and decathlon.

Chu En-te is entered in the decathlon today but the China coaches may not start him in the competition. Yesterday he balked at completing the pentathlon although he was sure of taking second place for China. The reason that he gave for not running the mile was "because he could not win," a thoroughly unsportsmanlike attitude. Chu was rightly condemned for his refusal to run the final event of the all-around competition. He would not respond to request from friends or pleadings of coaches. The opinion was freely expressed that Chu En-te should not run for China today.

After two days of disappointment in track and field events, China's performance in the pentathlon gave much satisfaction to her many supporters.

Tu Jung-tang starred early in the event. In the broad jump, he leaped 20 feet nine and half inches. He had a close second in the sturdy Japanese, Kozawa, who went 20 feet, 7⅞ inches. Coscolluela was a good third with 20 feet two and quarter inches.

Matters looked a bit gloomy for China when the Philippines jumped in the lead as Coscolluela smashed the Far Eastern Record in the discus throw, tossing the dish 111 feet 4⅜ inches. Tu was second with 101 feet 6½ inches and Kozawa of Japan was third with 97 feet 9¾ inches.

The shot put saw Tu giving Coscolluela a further lead in points, garnering only fourth place while the Filipino lad made a put of 35 feet 5⅞ inches. Lucas, the winner's team mate, was second with 34 feet 10 inches, while Futamara of Nippon was third, with 34 feet 3¾.

It was in the 220 yards dash that prospects looked again rosy for the Chinese contestant, for Tu reeled off the distance in 24 seconds flat, three yards ahead of Futamara, who made the trip in 24 2-5 seconds. China also garnered third place: Chu En-te, the former champion in the event, was two-fifth seconds behind the Japanese. Coscolluela failed to place, doing the distance in no less than 26 seconds.

The mile run went to Japan, Mihashi doing it in 5 minutes 20 seconds while Tu Jung-tang was only seven seconds behind him. Futamura gained third by covering the four laps in five minutes and 33 3-5 seconds.

INTERPORT TENNIS PLAYERS NAMED; REGARDED STRONG

Mansel-Smith, Tanaka And Pott Selected To Meet Hongkong

At a meeting of the selection committee held yesterday the following players were chosen to represent Shanghai in the Interport Tournament to be played with Hongkong next week: Singles—Mr. Mansel-Smith and Mr. Tanaka; Doubles—Messrs. Mansel-Smith and Pott.

Mr. Mansel-Smith is a newcomer to Shanghai and many regard him as the best player in the port while Tanaka by defeating Ng yesterday showed that he is at the top of his game.

Mr. Toussaint refused to be considered as a possibility for the team and Mr. Pott asked that he be not considered for the singles on account of the uncertainty of his knee holding out. The Shanghai selections are regarded as promising of victory.

well-placed lob, catching the Japanese flat-footed.

THIRD SET

Ng kept up his winning streak in the third set and led at 4-1 before Tanaka could get a game. It looked like Ng's match, but here Tanaka braced wonderfully, and by good length and taking the net at the proper time coupled with excellent smashing took five straight games and the set at 6-4.

Ng made some wonderful gets, but Tanaka was going too strong to be downed. The latter showed good generalship in playing to Ng's backhand when he himself was staying on the base line. The Chinese player's backhand is harder than his forehand, but he gets a mean cut with his forehand shot which is easy to volley but difficult to drive.

FOURTH SET

Winning the third set seemed to put new energy into the Japanese, and it was soon evident that Ng was done for. Each won his service at the start, and then Tanaka took three straight. Then followed one of the longest deuce games of the match which Ng finally captured.

Ng's followers who know that he can come back even in the darkest moments were still hoping that he would pull out of the hole. But Tanaka would not be denied. On the seventh game Ng threw away an easy kill and another chance for an easy ace and dropped his own serve. Tanaka made sure of his serve and the match 8-6, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2. The match was a beautiful one to watch, and most of the points were earned after long and exciting rallies.

FILIPINOS WIN DOUBLES

Suarez and Fargas did the expected by beating Kitagawa and Asano in the doubles. The bowling game of the Filipinos put the Japanese pair off completely in the first two sets, which fell to the former 6-1, 6-2.

The Japanese beat themselves in these sets, Kitagawa being especially uncertain overhead. Fargas played good tennis, but Suarez, who seemed to be having an off day, was good only in streaks.

The Filipino pair let down in the third set, and the Japanese began to find themselves in their overhead work, so that they surprised the gallery, who had been showing greater interest in the singles, by taking the set at 6-3.

In the fourth set, there were some excellent rallies at the net in which the Japs found who was the weaker of their opponents. They should have played Suarez more and Fargas less at the start. They led 4-3 and the Filipinos were plainly worried.

By good play on the part of Suarez who rose to the occasion and served well after having double-faulted frequently in the other sets, he and his partner took the next two games. Fargas then dropped his service, and the Japanese again led at 6-5. The Japanese made a good bid for the set, but their more experienced opponents were too much for them and finally ran the set out at 9-7, and the match 6-1, 6-2, 3-6, 9-7.

Fargas was the best of the four, and Asano was more reliable than the harder hitting Kitagawa. The Japanese played well on the whole, but displayed a lack of finesse in doubles play.

The matches for today are as follows:

10:30 a.m. Ng (China) vs. Okumura (Japan).
Tanaka (Japan) vs. Aragon (P.I.).

3 p.m. Fargas vs. Tyau.
Ng and Wei (China) vs. Kitagawa and Asano (Japan).

On Friday afternoon there will probably be a practice match between the Japanese doubles team and Mansel-Smith and partner, as the latter will represent Shanghai in the coming interport series against Hongkong next week.

ANTWERP GAMES IN 1920 SHOW BIG FINANCIAL GAIN

Soccer Football Changes Balance From Failure To Success

The Olympic Games of 1920 were a success from both a financial and attendance standpoint according to a complete and detailed statement issued by the Belgium Olympic Executive Committee. The attendance and receipt figures attached to the report show that the keen interest displayed in the soccer football play helped greatly to lift the international competition across the line which divides failure and success.

While only 28,665 persons, all told, paid admission, other than holders of season tickets to the stadium, to witness the athletic games in which America triumphed, 63,612 persons paid to see the Olympic football games.

A total of 219,689 persons paid to see the Olympic games, including ice hockey, and all other sports, and, according to the committee, this number exceeded the attendance at Stockholm, and put the 1920 Olympiad on an attendance footing equal to that of most of its predecessors.

The detailed report, showing attendance and revenues from admissions to all Olympic events gives an interesting index to the sport preferences of Europeans. It follows:

	Spectators.	Receipts in francs.
Ice hockey	6,946	37,119
Bicycle races	835	3,913
Athletics	28,665	164,935
Gymnastics	16,795	12,882.50
Lawn tennis	7,524	57,275
Wrestling and boxing	15,158	30,708.50
Rowing	6,617	16,633
Swimming	24,549	64,682
Football	63,612	284,635.50
Horsemanship	11,251	54,092.50
Polo	1,149	6,805

In addition to these, the season tickets for sports at the stadium, when figured, for attendance records, by multiplying their number by the number of days, give additional attendance of 56,570 for which the revenues were 350,850 francs. Other revenues, from programs, etc., swelled the total revenues to 1,090,917 francs which at normal rate of exchange amounts to about $218,000.

Including 15,000 free admissions to the athletic sports and 30,000 free admissions to the football games, the grand total of spectators who saw the Olympic games is estimated at 349,689.

As all major expenses, including cost of stadium, etc., were met by the Belgian government, the profit, after deducting minor expenditures, reaches more than 1,000,000 francs. This will go to the Antwerp Olympic association, which took the risk, organised the games and procured the guarantee funds.

days of the Crusades. We never went to the Crusades, but then we do go to the movies, so we know just what they looked like. A glimpse under the banners, however, dispelled the Crusade idea, for marching in their train were short girls and tall girls, girls in skirts and girls in trousers, girls with hair twisted into a neat roll about the contour of a grave-mound and girls with hair bobbed.

Oh yes, there were! Bobbed, not in the style of a girl who has decided to postpone marriage and take up a career—at least, until she can get a man—but after the manner of a typhoid-fever bob. In fact, it was hardly a bob at all—it was more of an amputation. There were several of this type observable in the procession that filed past the grandstand.

The general scheme of costuming was that of white jackets combined with black skirts or trousers, though one school offered variety in the form of gymnasium bloomers and the physical culture students wore soft sports hats. Wu Bung with 200 girls had the largest representation present, the E Koh Physical Training School standing second. Mission school students were greatly outnumbered by those from government institutions and Chinese private schools, though McTyeire, St. Mary's Hall, Eliza Yates Academy, the Mary Farnham School, and the Bridgeman School made a presentable showing in their allotted portion of the line of march.

SWIMMERS TWO DAYS LATE

After having completely circled the oval, the students ranged themselves in even ranks on the greensward and were led in what was billed on the program as "mass drill of mimetic exercises" by Miss Celia Moyer and Miss B. Yeun of the Y. W. C. A. They wound up like professional pitchers and tossed ether balls into the grandstand with so much realism that about fifty percent of the audience ducked. Then they pushed their imagination one notch farther and began to swim on the grassy green. If they had only held the demonstration last Monday, they could have had their swim without using any imagination and there would have been plenty of moisture left for the treading of the water-wheel exercise which followed.

Immediately after the joint calesthenics, which were very creditably performed considering that the various institutions had never rehearsed together, the students broke up into groups according to their schools and began a series of games. The E Koh girls, who were directly opposite the main grandstand, opened a lively little session of indoor baseball and were gleefully rooted by enthusiasts in the audience. The lady batsmen met the ball with remarkable cordiality, and they circulated on the bases as rapidly as a bad rumor.

Labelled by bright sashes of cerise and green, the Jung Nyih girls entertained the spectators with a game of pin-ball, while the girls of Chi Suh, all of whom wore large lavender hair-ribbons, engaged in a rapid beanbag relay. If the Y. W. C. A. Physical Training School students ever find occasion to travel on a steamer, they will be well-prepared to hold up their own in a game of deck-tennis, according to yesterday's demonstration. Thirty-seven different games were played in the brief period when the girls held the field, several of the schools shifting sports in less time than it takes a curio dealer to short-change a tourist.

FACTORY GIRLS PLEASE

One of the most interesting groups present were a number of girls from the Edison Factory, who are given weekly instruction by a Y. W. C. A. physical director. Granted a holiday by their employers in order to take part in the Olympic, the little factory workers were perhaps the most zealous players on the field.

On the principle that if one band is good, two must be doubly so, a large portion of music was served simultaneously on each side of the greensward. The notes skidded on moist places still left in the atmosphere and staged a head-on collision somewhere in the middle of the field. After two bruised and broken melodies had crawled quiveringly out of the fracas, the authorities decided that plural music is not a success and the bands accordingly alternated.

When the Chinese and Japanese basketball players skipped on to the field, young Mlle. Olympia gathered up her balls, sticks, nets, bags, and other paraphernalia and marched sedately off the greensward to the tune of "Over There."

In America the demonstration would not be a startling one, though it would probably merit a place in the Pathe weekly between the dedication of the new jail at Devil's Slide, Arizona, opening of the Burglars' Convention with a jimmy at Weisberger's Hall, Chicago.

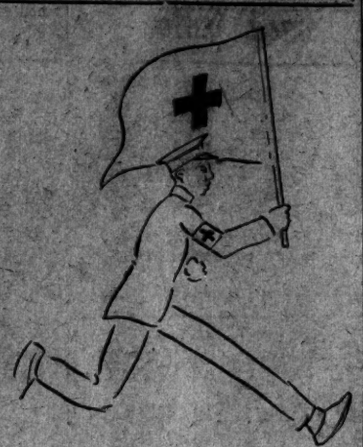
In China, however, where women and goldfish had for many centuries about the same social status, the entrance of girl students into the Far Eastern Olympic is what the Fourth of July orators call "epoch-making."

As we turned officeward again, our mind divided its interest between the complete disguise assumed by our white shoes and the strange new currents that are sweeping Chinese women into the world that stretches far beyond the courtyard walls which once relentlessly circumscribed their destiny. In fact we thought about this so deeply that we fell over three Japanese and were almost run down by a perambulator.

There Was Plenty Of Excitement At The Football Game

Millington says that he has been watching football all his life, and that he heard the whistle more yesterday in one game than in all those that preceded it.

China's goalie was a wiz! Here he is. Not a goal scored against him.



And every time the whistle blew or somebody stubbed his toe, the old reliable Red Cross was on the job.

Sport And The World At Large

By GRANTLAND RICE

There is a strong inclination upon the part of a good many citizens of each nation to imagine that that particular nation is most highly surcharged with sportsmanship.

But in this respect we'd like to offer a polite brief for the world at large.

Consider the facts of the Davis Cup. We have pretty clearly proved that Tilden and Johnston stand supreme. This fact is established as clearly as anything can be established in sport.

Under such conditions the attempt to win the Davis Cup would look to be such a forlorn chance that few would care to risk the time, money and effort in the assault.

Yet, in the face of this barrier, with the odds all against them, we have more than a dozen nations exceedingly keen to enter the joust just for the sport itself.

They would like to win, of course. But they can't very well expect to win.

Yet they have all rallied to the occasion in a way that only 100 percent sportsmen could rally. They have in this case certainly put the playing of the game above victory alone, for most of them know they haven't even the remotest chance to beat two such tennis stars as Tilden and Johnston, even if they worked their way into the challenge round.

So, in the act of panning the universe at large, with the accent on all foreign nations, one might stop for a moment and consider the case of the Davis Cup.

Athletes Are Guests Of Organisations At Reception At "Y"

Six local organisations entertained the Chinese, Japanese and Filipino athletes last night at the Y.M.C.A. Dr. C. T. Wang, chairman of the Chinese Contest Committee, presided. Mr. Shen Hsin-ching of the Kiangsu Educational Association, and Mr. Camilo Osias of the Philippine team were the principal speakers. A musical program was given.

The organisations which acted as hosts were the Kiangsu Educational Association, the China Vocational Educational Association, the Y.M.C.A., the National Committee, Y.M.C.A., the World's Chinese Students' Federation and the Educational Progressive Society.

On Sunday at the new building of the Eastern Times, Foochow and Shantung Roads, the Chinese contestants will be guests at a reception to be given by the Shanghai Newspapers Association. The program begins at 3 o'clock.

Japanese And Filipinos Both Win Baseball Games

Sugai and back for an out at the pan.

THEN CAME HITS

Fate, ill-fortuned for Philippines, decreed that Tingzon should single cleanly to right, and that Garcia the next in order should also drive out a clean hit to right field. Bernales followed for a strike-out, and the opportunity was lost, not to return again during that game.

THE WINNING RUN

Tatsuma went to first base safe on a force-out throw by Platon to Hugo to catch Sugai, who had gotten base on a single. Hugo juggled the ball in his catch. The decision was close. McGowan called Sugai out. But Hugo and the other infielders did not hear or see the decision. Sugai kept going, and Tatsuma was neglected in a further effort to dispose of Sugai. He was finally run down between second and third, after which it was learned that he had already been called out at second. Tatsuma in the meantime had taken second. Suzuki drove a grounder to Hugo, which was fast. Hugo fumbled for an error, and Suzuki was safe and Tatsuma went home with the winning run.

The Filipinos one run in the second game also resulted from an error. Belmonte singled through third, a fierce liner. He took second on Hugo's single through second. Platon struck out, and Jaropillo who followed drove a stiff grass cutter through third toward left field. Belmonte who was on second scored when Kagayama fumbled the stop.

FIRST GAME DETAILS

First Inning

Japan.—Utsumi opened the game by fanning, and Kagayama followed suit. Miyaki flied out to Tingzon. No runs, no hits.

Philippines.—Hugo pop-flied out to Ono. Platon went out Suzuki to Tatsuma at first. Jaropillo grounded to Sugai and was thrown out by Miyaki to Tatsuma. No runs, no hits.

Second Inning

Japan.—Mori struck out. Sugai flied to Garcia in right. Tatsuma went out Jaropillo to Tingzon. No runs, no hits.

Philippines.—Fernando walked and stole second, taking third on Mori's bad throw to Suzuki. Ciriaco fanned. With Tingzon at bat a squeeze play was attempted Fernando started for home, but Ono pitched wide and Tingzon had no chance to connect. Fernando was left between third and home and finally was caught in his dash for the plate, Mori to Miyaki to Mori. Tingzon then singled to right and Garcia followed suit, but Bernales fanned retiring the side. No runs, two hits.

Third Inning

Japan.—Suzuki and Ono fanned and Numata flied out to Fernando in center. No runs, no hits.

Philippines.—Pablo went out Utsumi to Tatsuma. Hugo flied out to center. Platon got first on Utsumi's fumble of his grounder. Jaropillo flied out to deep right, Sugai going back nicely for the catch. No runs, no hits.

Fourth Inning

Japan—Utsumi drove one to right field almost on the foul line. The ball took one hop over Garcia's head, and Utsumi got to third before it was fielded back to the diamond. Kagayama Texas-Leagued to Fernando in short center. Fernando came in fast for the catch and held Utsumi from scoring from third. Miyaki with three and two on him waited it out and was rewarded with a pass. He started to steal. Ciriaco threw to Platon, and the latter ran him back to first and held Utsumi at third. Mori fanned, and Sugai went out Platon to Tingzon, on a beautiful catch of a low throw. No runs, one hit.

Philippines—Fernando was thrown out Ono to Tatsuma. Ciriaco flied out to Ono. Tingzon singled down the third base line, Miyaki reached far but couldn't knock it down. Ono got Garcia's little bingle and beat him out first for the third out. No runs, one hit.

Fifth Inning

Japan—Tatsuma singled between short and third. Suzuki hit one to Platon, who by a swell stop forced Tatsuma at second. Jaropillo's first to Ono was a wild one and Suzuki went to second. Ono went out Hugo to Tingzon and Tatsuma took third. Numata fanned with Tatsuma left on third. This was Jaropillo's seventh strike out. No runs, one hit.

Philippines—Bernales flied out to Ono. Pablo fanned. Hugo bounced a drive foul off a spectator's bean in the bleachers and then rolled a little one to Suzuki and was thrown out at first. No runs, no hits.

Sixth Inning

Japan—Utsumi, the lad who tripled in the fourth, flied out to Fernando in left center. Fernando appeared to be everywhere in the outfield. Bernales went into the crowd for Kagayama's foul which he grabbed off after a hard run with his back to the ball. Miyaki fanned, the eighth Japanese to whiff. No runs, no hits.

Philippines—Platon flied to Suzuki. Jaropillo fanned, the fourth Filipino to fall for Ono's offerings. Fernando fouled a fast one that hit Chapman on the wish bone. He then singled through Miyaki and Utsumi to left. With Ciriaco up, Chapman was hit again, on the same wish bone. Fernando was caught stealing by a perfect throw and tag, Miro to Suzuki. No runs, one hit.

Seventh Inning

Japan—Chapman started the inning by stuffing a half dozen sweaters under his chest protector to smother off the numerous foul tips. Mori, first up, then fouled one down and caught Chapman on the leg. Then he fanned, for the third successive time—the ninth strikeout for Jaropillo. Sugai singled between third and short. Tatsuma hit to Platon, the latter threw to Hugo at second to force Sugai. Hugo juggled the ball, but ran Sugai down for the second out, Tatsuma going to second. Suzuki hit a hot one to Hugo which was fumbled, putting Suzuki safe at first, and Tatsuma scored from second, on the throw to first. The Japanese section of the stands went wild in their joy at the tally. Ono flied out to left while the cheering section was rooting a few thousand strong. One run, one hit.

Philippines—The Filipinos went into their batting with desperate long swings at the ball. Ciriaco went out—Ono to Tatsuma. Tingzon flied the same way. Garcia flied to Suzuki back of second for the third out. No runs, no hits.

Eight Inning

Japan—Vinegas went to the box for the Philippines. Jaropillo left with a record of nine strike-outs, one walk and three hits. Numata struck out. Utsumi drove a fast one to Hugo who threw him out at first after a beautiful stop and peg. Kagayama was out Platon to Tingzon. No runs, no hits.

Philippines—Bernales took one strike, then waited Ono out for a walk. Pablo bunted first ball pitched for a nice sacrifice. Hugo took two balls and a strike, then lined a stiff drive to Tatsuma, for the second out, Bernales was doubled at second, Tatsuma to Utsumi. No runs, no hits.

Ninth Inning

Japan—Miyaki drew two wide ones, then missed a strike. A foul followed for the second strike, and a third one was called for the first out. Mori, after two strikes, doubled to center. Fernando barely got his hands on the ball after a long leap, but it was too hot and it went for a hit. A passed ball by Ciriaco put him on third. Sugai fanned after two balls had been called on him. Tatsuma grounded to Vinegas, who stopped it nicely and threw him out at first. No runs, one hit.

Philippines—Platon, after a strike was called rolled one to Ono who got his fifth assist in the throw-out to Tatsuma. Belmonte, batting for Vinegas fanned, on two called strikes, two fouls and a swing. No runs, no hits.

PLAY IN SECOND GAME

First Inning

Japan—Japan played the second game with the same line-up used in the first, including Ono, the twirler. Philippines pitched Belmonte their south-paw star. Their other players were the same as in the first game with a shifted batting order. Utsumi fanned on three fouls, the third of which was tipped into Ciriaco's mit. He had three balls before the last foul tip. Kagayama grounded out Platon to Tingzon. Miyaki took one ball, then drove one to left that had all the ear marks of a single. Pablo however tore after the ball and grabbed it for a beautiful catch. No runs, no hits.

Philippines—Hugo grounded to Miyaki and was thrown out to Tatsuma. Platon missed two strikes, took one ball and then went out by the Miyaki-Tatsuma route on a little grounder. Jaropillo had a ball and strike on him when Mori, the Japanese catcher stopped because of cramps in the legs. After a massage and some calisthenics he continued. Jaropillo shot a fast grounder at Utsumi who stopped it nicely and with a fast low throw got him out at first. No runs, no hits.

Second Inning

Japan—Mori took one ball, then tipped a foul onto Umpire McGowan's mask. He missed the next ball by a yard, then fouled again hitting McGowan on the left shoulder. The next ball which was high and wide, he missed a mile. Chapman stopped the game while he got the crowd off the field behind first, and McGowan utilized the time in padding up his protector with sweaters. No runs, no hits.

Philippines—Fernando flied out to Sugai who made a beautiful running catch in short right. Ciriaco took one ball, then flied out to Numata. Tingzon drove a clean single base to center for the first hit of the game. Pablo fanned. No runs, one hit.

Third Inning

Japan—Suzuki rolled one to Hugo and was thrown out at first. Ono flied to Bernales. Numata walked on five pitched balls and stole second on Ciriaco's poor throw. Utsumi had two called strikes on him when he grounded to Platon for a throw-out to first. No runs, no hits.

Philippines—Bernales flied to Numata. Belmonte followed suit. Hugo rolled one to Ono for an out at first. Tingzon at this stage had the only hit of the game. Belmonte appeared to be pitching a no-run, no-hit game. No runs, no hits.

Fourth Inning

Japan—Kagayama went out on a bunt, Belmonte to Tingzon. Miyaki steamed one at Bernales who leaped up toward the foul line and speared the ball as it came lining down. It was a beautiful catch, a certain double, if not stopped. Mori singled past third. Sugai fouled out to Tingzon. No runs, one hit, the first and only hit off Belmonte.

Philippines—Platon fanned on two fouls and one called strike. Jaropillo lined one to left and Kakayama nipped it off the top of the grass on a running catch that brought the Japanese rooters to their feet. Fernando fanned. No runs, no hits.

Fifth Inning

Japan.—Tatsuma fanned on the first three balls pitched, Suzuki drove one at Bernales, who juggled it a few seconds, then grasped it for a fast throw-out to Tingzon. Ono went out, Hugo to first. No runs, no hits.

Philippines.—Ciriaco drove a twister to Suzuki who threw wild to Tatsuma, forcing the latter off the bag and giving Ciriaco a life. Tingzon sacrificed. Pablo flied out to Utsumi. Bernales rolled one at Tatsuma, who retired him without any help. No runs, no hits.

Sixth Inning

Japan.—Numata grounded out Hugo to Tingzon. Utsumi was safe on first on Platon's error. He stole. Kagayama went out Bernales to Tingzon, and Utsumi went to third, Miyaki rolled to Tingzon. No runs, no hits.

Philippines—Belmonte drove a fierce liner at Miyaki, who made a good stab at it but failed to hold it. Hugo made two attempts to bant, then singled between first and second for a very life. Pablo fanned. Jaropillo singled to left. Kagayama stopped the ball, but it bounced off his shoe. Belmonte scored from second. Hugo was caught out at the plate Kagayama to Bernales to Mori. Jaropillo, taking second. Fernando went out, Utsumi to Tatsuma and the side was out with Jaropillo left on third. One run, three hits.

Seventh Inning

Japan—Mori drove a fly to Fernando in deep center. The latter was slow in starting after it, and when he got to it he let the ball slip through his hands. Sugai hit to Belmonte and Mori was forced out at second. Tatsuma flied to Pablo. Suzuki fouled to Tingzon.

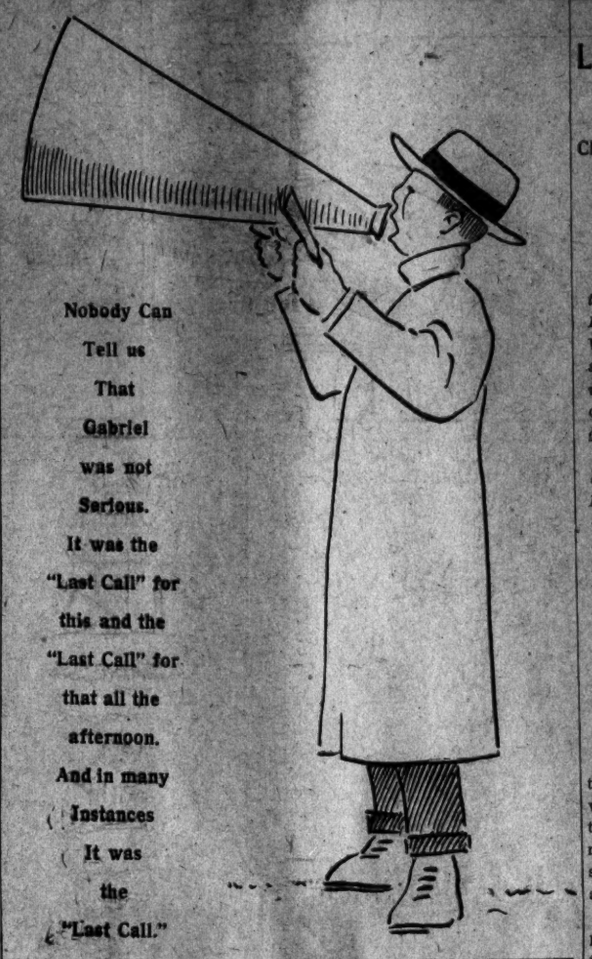
And Of Course You Noticed This



SAYS "BUGS" Baer:

LAST WORD IN SELF-DEFENSE

Champion's Wonderful Ankle Technique Defied Foes And Pursuit

BY 'BUGS' BAER

Mr. B.

I take my Waterman in tow to tell you of my man Hap Gears. Hap slammed commuters on the West Shore R. R. The R. R. stands for Rough Riding. He was a tough patient and only came up for air once a year like a groundhog.

He met Gink in the first round of a 16½ verse Queensbury lyric. He met Gink again in the last round. Gink complained to an officer that Hap was following him.

Hap flailed Gink like wheat. Gink is still trying to snare moonbeams with a butterfly net.

Yours until milk is the same color in the city that it is in the country,

J. FRANCIS WARD, Brooklyn.

If J. Francis is any relation to the Fifth Ward of Philadelphia, we will vote that he is one tough district. But this Hap Gears was a morning glory. Before Gink's superior alibis, he was as helpless as an opened oyster.

Now there are some folks who protest against Doc Guzzle's claim to being the meanest man on wheels. Mike Donaldson claims he knows a Haverstraw bird who can pick up dimes with his brogans. Roughtown was no nest of learning and culture. The folks were real people who didn't call sourkraut Liberty Cabbage during the war. They were brave and courageous and feared nothing that was caged.

Eight hundred people attended the Roughtown banquet that was given to Gink Fowler the day after the champion was run out of town. Gink had been the guest of honor at a municipal riot and had both legs broken when he tried to kick the Mayor's high silk hat for the goal that would have won the panic. They paged the ambulance and took Gink to an easier riot in the children's end of the town.

A special session of Congress was called to decide the case. The Mayor claimed that, as Gink had only broken two legs, he was guilty of steadling a ride in the community ambulance.

Rough words. But the sentiment was beautiful. The fight had only gone a couple hundred rounds when Gink suddenly crossed Hap with a salvo of knuckles on the identification disc. Everybody who fought Gink wore a tag in the ring so they would know where to send him. Hap was the guy who was fired out of the army for saluting with both hands in his pockets. Hap took the slap very naturally. Practise makes perfect. He struck the canvas without a splash. It was an ideal launching. As he left the ways the Mayor's wife cracked a bottle of Swamproot over his skullpiece.

Although Gink flattened Hap as easily as he pressed and ironed all opponents, he was years living down that stolen ride in the ambulance.

American Volunteers Inter-Port Shooting

The annual rifle match between the Hankow American Volunteer Company and the American Co., S.V.C., for the Henkel Shield, was completed yesterday afternoon when the American Co., S.V.C., fired and made a total of 1473. Hankow fired on May 1st and made a total 1442 (H.P.S. 1600). This gives Shanghai two and Hankow three wins on the shield, which becomes the permanent property of the Company first registering six wins.

The following gentlemen kindly acted as umpires:—

In Shanghai: Mr. Collaco, S.R.A. Sergt. Major D. Leighton and Quarter-Master Sergt. W. T. Rose, Headquarters, S.V.C.

In Hankow: Captain Lovett, Capt. Jameson and Lieutenant McIntosh of the H.B.V.C.
